House Approves Bill To Invest Tax Funds

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The state would be permitted to invest revenue from the intangible tax until time for its return to local government subdivisions where it was collected under a bill approved by the Missouri House today.

The interest collected also would be rebated to the local government, aside from 2 per cent the state retains to cover the cost of collection.

The House also advanced bills giving pay raises to second class county auditors and collectors.

As approved, the auditors would get a pay boost to $12,000 a year in all nine counties. Now in eight of the counties the auditor gets $8,000 and in Boone County he gets $6,000.

Rep. Robert Pierce, R-Cape Girardeau, was unsuccessful in getting the pay range based on a combination of population and assessed valuation.

The collectors would get between $11,385 and $12,975 under an approved amendment by Rep. George W. Parker, R-Columbia.

He said it would give the collectors 10 per cent more than the second class county clerks, with the increase added because county clerks get some commission from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses.

Because all the budget bills had not been returned from the printer their normally routine final passage was delayed until later in the day.

Rep. E. J. Cantrell, appropriations chairman, said the bills would put the state in the red by about $3.8 million in general revenue (tax) funds. Other estimates of the imbalance ran higher.

Cantrell's figure did not include the allotment for state aid to school, set at the same $234 million level as this year.

Juveniles Suspected Of Setting Charleston Fires

CHARLESTON — One juvenile was taken into custody and another is being sought today by Charleston police for investigation in connection with two fires believed to have purposefully set Tuesday night.

The fire department was called at 10:15 p.m. to a vacant house owned by Early Lee Hope at 708 Grand. The house was slightly damaged early Saturday morning by fire, which authorities also believe was a case of arson.

The interior was extensively damaged last night, according to Fire Chief Joe Johnson.

Immediately after the fire was extinguished, firemen were called to a vacant house owned by Buddy Randall on Olive St. No damage was reported.

"Kerosene was thrown in the house and ignited. We got there when only the Kerosene was burning," Johnson said.

DWI Charge Made by Police

Melba L. Taylor, 37, 538 Vernon St., was arrested at 11:55 p.m. yesterday on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

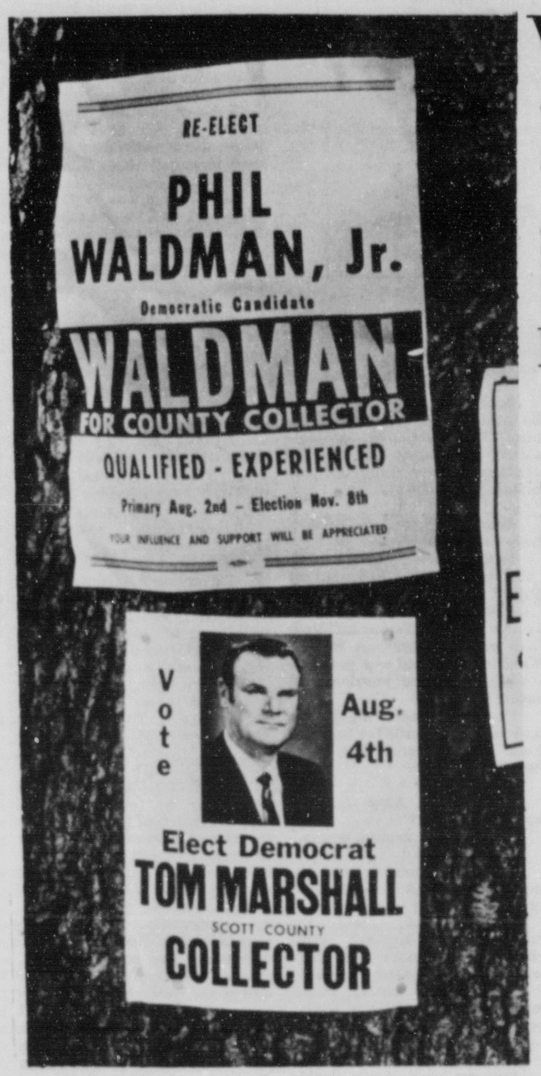

David Richard Garner, 27, route one, was arrested at 11:30 p.m. yesterday on charges of driving while intoxicated and driving while license revoked.

Eight Guns Stolen At East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE — The Western Auto Associate store here was robbed of eight shotguns, valued at $800, Jim Bomar, owner and manager, said today

Taken were pump and automatic shotguns, and an automatic rifle. some small change was also taken from store, the owner said.

The breakin as said to have been between 12 and 2 a.m. today, when a front door glass was broken.

A CONSIDERABLE NUMBER OF comments have been heard concerning some placards indicating Phil Waldman, county clerk, is seeking re- election (top left) as Scott County collector. Although holding office 16 years as clerk, he has not held the collector's office before. Therefore he is not seeking re- election. Waldman is one of four candidates seeking election to the Collector's office for the first time. Other candidates are Tom Marshall, J. W. "Dub" Shuffit and C. B. Taylor. Marshall is presently filling the unexpired term of Aubrey Michael, who resigned in January. This picture was taken on the old Malone Home property on West Malone Avenue in Sikeston.

Viet Allies Drive for Phnom Penh as Withdrawals Begin

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today the first American troop withdrawals from Cambodia. At the same time South Vietnamese forces launched a drive along Highway 1 toward the capital of Phnom Penh, 50 miles away.

Associated press correspondent David Rosenzweig reported that a South Vietnamese armored column accompanied by U.S. advisers pushed up Highway 1 from the provincial capital of Svay Rieng to Kompong Trabek, 25 miles to the west. The armored column linked up with South Vietnamese marines driving up the Mekong River, then engaged about 600 enemy troops three miles beyond Kompong Trabek in heavy fighting.

The announced purpose of the drive was to clear Highway 1 for the repatriation of Vietnamese in Cambodia.

Informed sources said the initial U.S. troop withdrawals from Cambodia totaled fewer than 2,000 men.

The command first announced that elements of the 3rd Brigade, 9th Infantry Division, had been withdrawn from the Parrot's Beak section of Cambodia about 45 miles west of Saigon.

Later, headquarters reported the withdrawal of one-third of the 4th Division task force operating more than 200 miles to the north in the Se San base area of Cambodia, about 50 miles west of Pleiku City.

U.S. Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said in Washington earlier that several thousand American troops already had been withdrawn from Cambodia.

Sources said the 9th Division unit had secured Ba Thu, about a mile inside Cambodia, after the North Vietnamese base area had been seized by South Vietnamese. U.S. losses during the week of occupation were reported as four killed and 20 wounded.

The U.S. Command said today that all U.S. losses in Cambodia totaled 101 killed and 427 wounded.

Official sources have said 14,000 to 16,000 U.S. troops and 18,000 to 20,000 South Vietnamese troops are operating inside Cambodia on more than a dozen fronts on both sides of the Mekong River.

Allied headquarters said American and South Vietnamese forces have killed more than 6,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops and seized nearly 10,000 weapons and hundreds of tons of ammunition in Cambodia since the drive began two weeks ago.

Preliminary Census Results Doubted by Sikeston Officials

Sikeston residents generally agree that it's "pretty surprising" that only 700 residents were added to the Sikeston population in the last ten years.

A telephone survey was taken this morning to get an idea of citizen reaction.

O. D. Clayton, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said:

"I think it's wrong. I don't think it can be conceivably right."

Clayton believes there has been a "healthy growth" in Sikeston.

"There has been so many new buildings added and new industries started in Sikeston that I just don't believe the population has grown only 700 in the last decade," Clayton concluded.

Raymert Miller, city manager, said, "yes, it was quite a surprise."

Miller said:

"I don't see how that can be right. Going by building permits, we have built over 700 houses in the last ten years.

Asked if this would have any affect on bringing in prospective industries, Miller replied:

"I don't think there will be any affect at all. Those industries won't be influenced by an addition of only 700 residents to Sikeston."

Don Bohannon, Chamber of Commerce president, said, "I was sure surprised."

Asked what he thought attributed to the addition of only 700 citizens to Sikeston, he ansered:

"The only thing I can see is that in the last ten years, there has been a general pull out of residents of the rural areas as a result of moving to industrial areas."

Bohannon added that he doesn't think the slow rise in population will affect the growth potential of Sikeston.

"It won't hurt the community, but it may hurt our pride a little," he concluded.

Of 10 residents called, most thought it pretty surprising, but were not overly concerned about it.

Two comments were:

"It's pretty surprising. It's probably due to so many young people leaving and not coming back."

"It was a little shocking because it seems like Sikeston's been growing all along."

Preliminary census figures show 16 counties in southeast Missouri lost population while the larger cities of the area were gaining in the decade since 1960.

Byron W. Mercer, manager of the district census office in Cape Girardeau, said the population of the area at present is 360,770, down 29,467 from since 1960.

Only five of the counties registered population increases, with Cape Girardeau County showing the biggest gain, 48,888, an increase of 6,826.

Pemiscot County had the sharpest decline, from 38,095 to 25,847, a decrease of about one-third.

The city of Cape Girardeau had a 24.5 per cent population increase to 31,069, up 6,122 since 1960. Poplar Bluff, with 16,471 residents, picked up 545 and Sikeston, with 14,488, gained 723 persons.

Tri-County Drive Underway

The Mental Health Bellringer drive is being conducted this month. The theme is "Open your mind, your heart, your hand to the mentally ill."

Mrs. Lucille Gregory of East Prairie is general chairman of the three county drive. The Tri-County Mental Health Association includes Scott, Mississippi, and Stoddard counties.

Mrs. Gregory has announced the following community chairmen:

Dale Beaird, Sikeston, Stan Eudy, Scott County, Alberta Bishop, Dogwood, Nadine Barnhill, Gravel Ridge, Ellen Brumley, Wyatt; Juanita Maynard, Dorena, Karen McClendon, Anniston, Paula Cunningham, Bertrand, Emma Hall, Essex, Mrs. Ernest Wheeler, Gray Ridge, Joyce Overby, Bernie, Juanita Curtis, Bloomfield, and Ruth Baugh, Dexter.

Chairmen for Charleston and East Prairie will be announced soon.

Mrs. Agnes' Cunningham is assisting Mrs. Gregory in the overall planning.

The Tri- County Mental Health Association is an affiliated chapter with the Missouri Association for mental Health and the National Association for Mental Health. These organizations exist to improve attitudes toward the mentally ill and mental illness and to improve services for the 20,000,000 Americans (400,000 Missourians) who will be mentally ill during their lifetimes.

Anyone not contacted during the May Bellringer Drive in may send their contribution to Tri - County Mental Health Association, Box 434, Sikeston, Missouri 63801.

Portageville Couple Awarded $35,000 Judgment in Death

NEW MADRID — A jury Monday awarded $35,000 judgment to Edward Deere and Edna Mae Deere, Portageville, against A. D. Walton and Gordon Craig Humphrey for the wrongful death Sept. 6, 1969 of their daughter, Janet Deere. The jury ruled in favor of a third defendant, Robert Joseph Davis, who was driving the car in which Miss Deere was a passenger.

Circuit judge William L. Ragland presided.

In Circuit court Tuesday Aquilla Branham, pleaded guilty to carrying a concealed weapon. Judge Ragland suspended a sixty- day county jail sentence upon payment of costs. A felonious assault charge against Branham was dismissed. Charges against Branham were filed after a shooting Jan. 20 at Red's Tavern in Portageville in which Jackie O'Guinn was injured.

In three comdenation cases filed by the City of Portageville for land condemnation for a sewage treatment plant site, access road and sewer easement, Judge Ragland issued a condemantion order. George Bock, F. M. Baird and Van Gibbs were appointed commissioners to assess damages. The three suits were filed agianst Vera Hollowell, Eila Fuller, Leonard L. Harden and Loretta Harden; Donald Rone, Bethel Rone, Alice Ward and R. W. Ward Sr.; and Stowell Hobs and Louella Hobbs.

A divorce was granted Clarence Dale Poore against Cheryl Lynn Poore, after a property settlement was approved. Sharon McCoin was divorced from Clarence Lawon McCoin and restored to her maiden name of Shumway. Larry Gene Gurlen was awarded a divorce and custody of a child in his suit against Alice Jewell Gurlen.

A motion for summary judgment of Ervin Buchanan was sustained against Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation. Buchanan had been awarded a personal injuries judgment agains the corporation in Shelby county, Tenn.

Graduation Will Be Held Outdoors

By LEG L. SCHADE

Supt. of R-6 Schools Lynn Twitty said Tuesday afternoon "if the present $18 million school allotment for Missouri schools is restored by the senate, we will be able to operate our schools without too much difficulty next year."

"Even at this reduced amount," Twitty said, "the difference would necessitate a few minor changes that may arise due to increased enrollment and what inflation may cause in the 1970-71 school year.

He urged school board members to contact their legislators in an effort to win approval of state school funds.

"If the latest state schools budget cut is not restored," Twitty said, "then our R-6 school system is in real trouble."

The six-man board spent two hours in going over their next year's program to review all operations, from the school lunchroom to the teaching staff.

It was pointed out teacher vacancies would be at a minimum and not as acute as in past years.

At present, the board has set the baccalaureate and commencement exercises to be held on the football field instead of the Field House. Bacclaureate will be held May 24. Commencement will be held May 28.

Expenses for April in the amount of $25,983,12, was approved.

The school lunches served at the eight school centers in April that constituted 19 days, was 62,448 meals, of which 51,118 were served to students, 3,587 to adults and a la carte lunches at Senior high, 7,743. Of this amount 9,760 free lunches were served to students, and 1,857 to adults. 39,612 were meals of type, or department of agriculture approved meals. Schools served were Senior high, middle school, Lee Hunter, Matthews, Morehouse, Southeast, Southwest and State Training Center.

It was pointed out school budgeting at the present time was more complex than in previous years, due to adding manpower and adult programs funded by both federal and state funds. School costs cannot be determined months ahead as in regular school budgets, Twitty said, as federal and state funds are received as late as in November, and yet a program may be opened as early as July. The local school fiscal year also differs from federal. Seventy-five percent of the budget is funded by both federal and state funds.

Supt. Twitty, however, reminded the board that with the overall budget can be supplemented with help from both the school help and manpower assistants that will help trim expenses and at the same time increase efficiency.

Charles Simpson, director of finance, later outlined the past budget for 1969-70, and listed a number of changes that will save the school district money.

The regular school budget for the past year was $2,764,000, with the manpower budget being $300,000, and another $243,000 for elementary and secondary grade students in the remedial program. The 1970-71 budget will amount to nearly the same as the previous year. All persons are invited to view the budget at Mr. Simpson's office.

Simpson also said that a savings of $25,000 would be possible in purchasing supplies amounting to $25 or more must have the approval of the supervisors and principals before an item can be purchased. All classroom needs are requisitioned by the teachers at the end of the year for use at the beginning of a new school year.

It was announced that the absence of any child from school during the school year was a loss of $2.84 per student, but that delinquency of students have been reduced sharply through the cooperation of the police department.

According to an announcement from the state department of education for triple "A" schools, the average cost per student was $6.40, while at Sikeston R-6 district it is $5.73.

"The Middle School enrollment growth is presently the major problem," Twitty told board members, "as of today there are 1,086 students enrolled in grades six through eight at the beginning of the year, and today stands at 1,129. It is our belief that the most feasible thing to do is to transport a number of them to Morehouse, where the building can accommodate up to 300, where presently 91 are in attendance." The board did not pass on the matter, but was held open for later observation.

It was reported 24 licensed practical nurses completed a nursing course during the year, to which board member Dr. Max Heeb replied, "had it not been for this program, the hospital here, Dexter and Kennett, could not have operated efficiently." It was also learned that a good passing score for nurses was 350, these adults trainees averaged between 376 and 373.

Other problems brought out at the meeting was the need of a school bus as a replacement each year, while two buses are purchased every two years. Bids will be published for the purchase.

Bert Rowe Jr., was placed on the insurance committee, to replace William Huff. The liability insurance for all 440 school employes was renewed.

A summer program will be provided for priveat students, sponsored by federal funds, and held at Southwest school for grades one through five. The program will open June 15 through July 24, each Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Besides the instruction of the three "R's", a recreational program will be held daily.

In view of the numerous school budget programs over Missouri, it was told that numerous schoolboards met their budgets by lowering their incidental fund and placing it in the teachers fund, which is not an accredited practice.

The schoolboard called attention to the open house that begins Thursday night, to which the public is invited.

Judge Sets $3,500 Bond in Sodomy Case

NEW MADRID — Judge Leo Hedgepth set $3,500 bond for Floyd Newberry, charged with sodomy, after Newberry waived preliminary hearing in magistrate court and was bound over to circuit court.

Steve Lee Rudnicki was fined $65 on charges of illegal possession of intoxicating beverage and driving without an operator license.

Speeding charges and fines included Joseph Lee Applewhite, John Timothy Davis, and Paul Berry Clark, $20 fines each; Joseph Bradley Emery, $15; and bonds forfeited on speeding charges, William Edward Hornburg, $75; and William Edward Alterman, $25.

Levied $15 fines each on misdemeanor charges were Charles Lee Harwell, charged with careles and imprudent driving, wrong side on interstate; Donald Ray Sutton, operating vehicle with improper exhaust system; Billy Joe Whittle, operating vehicle with expired operator license; John Allen Spencer, fishing without a non- resident permit; Carrie Ruth Kobeck, improper registration; Bobby Gene Laymon and Roman B. Mahan, each charged with operating a vehicle with out- of- state operator license while a Missouri resident.

Gideon Anderson Lumber Co. requested dismissal with prejudice, a civil suit pertaining to ejectment only, against Mr. and Mrs. Fred Credille, reserving the right to bring later action against them for damages.

A change of venue was granted Gene Barnes in a civil suit filed against him by Marilyn Stallings, Carolyn C. Evans and Billy M. Chapman. The case was transferred to Mississippi county magistrate court.

After settlement, and by agreement Household Finance Corporation dismissed a suit with prejudice, against Clement J. McFarling Jr., at plaintiff's cost.

$65 Stolen At Senior High

Beverly Cox, 246 Watson, reported to police at 6 p.m. yesterday that a man approximately 35 years old followed her home and tried to force her girl friend into his car . She said this occurred between 3:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. She said he was driving a white Ford.

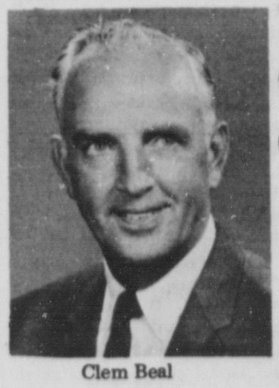

Jeff Halford, 803 E. Kathleen, reported to police at 11:25 a.m. yesterday that someone took $65 from his billfold,which was in his locker at Sikeston High School.

Standard Pressman Injured

Lowell Webb, pressman for The Daily Standard, was seriously injured late Tuesday afternoon when his right hand was caught in the newspaper press. The press was in operation. Webb, who lives at 808 Mary Street, was injured about 5:30 p.m.

Webb summoned help several times before being freed. He apparently was caught in the press about 15 minutes before a fellow-worker shut the press down and freed him.

Webb was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital where he is scheduled for an operation today.

Clem Beal

Clem Beal Heads Newly Formed Mail Council

DEXTER — Clem Beal, Sikeston, vice- president of the First National Bank, has been named president of the newly formed Bootheel Mail Users Council.

Other officers are Barney Miller, Dexter newspaper publisher, co- chairman, and Bob Robbins, manager of Missouri Utilities in Dexter, is secretary.

Purpose of the new council is to work with the 52 post offices in the area.

The council will also provide communication between business mailers and the post offices and assist in improving postal service through generating interest.

Tornado Clean-up Continues

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Rescue workers and relief agencies pressed a search today for more dead and injured in the debris of this tornado-scarred West Texas city.

There were thousands of homeless—an estimated 4,800 with up to 750 dwellings destroyed—perhaps 500 injured, and 20 known dead.

Estimates of property damage from the savage twister Monday night ranged up to $200 million.

For a time Tuesday it appeared that the tornado-ruined Great Plains Life building, the city's 20-story pride, would totter and fall. Great cracks and gashes were seen in what remained of its facade. The surrounding area was evacuated hurriedly.

But the swaying building stood.

Power went on and off in the city of 170,000 population all day Tuesday, but mostly it remained off. Telephone service was sporadic, and Mayor James Granberry called for water rationing, asking citizens to use it only for drinking and c ng.

Authorities declared a curfew, enforced by patrolling National Guard and State Department of Public Safety personnel, for the downtown section Tuesday night to prevent further looting.

Nursing Home Plan Discussed

WARDELL — Approximately 500 attended a special meeting last night at 7:30 p.m. at the Missouri Delta Ecumenical Council building at Mamos center in Wardell for the purpose of organizing a six-county bootheel nursing home district.

Abram Hirschowitz, Oran, was speaker.

The counties included are Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, Pemiscot, New Madrid, and Dunklin.

A steering committee was formed for the purpose of looking into the problems and forming ideas to establish the district. Hirschowitz was appointed co-ordinator. A chairman was chosen to represent each county.

It was proposed to present a statement to the department of Housing and Urban Development asking for an amendment to the present housing act to allow local housing authorities to construct and administer housing and care similar to the nursing home concept for the low income elderly and those on social security.

Hirschowitz said:

"The authority through its annual contribution contract would, if the necessary act is amended, permit the project to be staffed with the necessary people so they would be able to have a nurse and nurses aid on duty to render health care service."

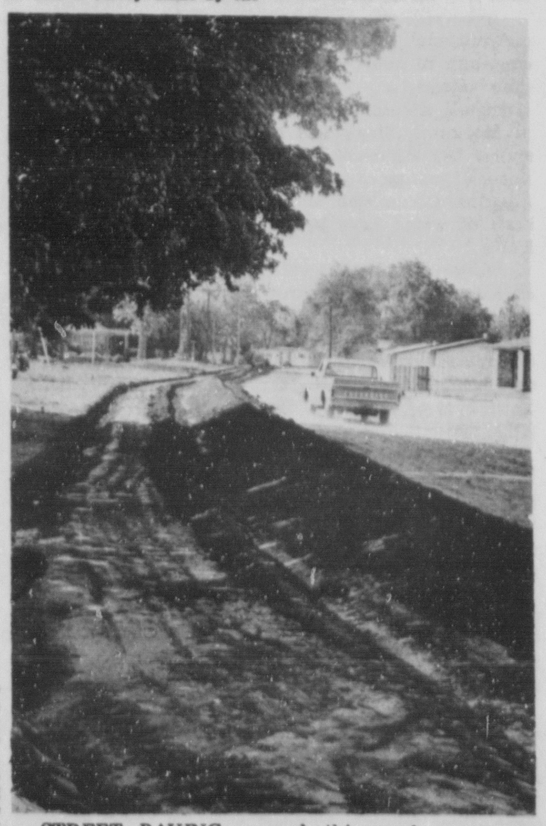

Hirschowitz said the elderly are receiving $44 to $66 a month in social security checks. He said a survey made by the Bootheel Comprehensive Council showed that 53.2 per cent of the families in the six-county area have an income of $3,000 a year or less.

"The reason for the district is that some people who don't need to be in hospitals should be in a nursing home center," Hirschowitz said.

"The people in Washington in charge of medicare and those in charge of medicaid should make a change so that people who have an insurance policy can afford to go to a hospital. No changes will increase the cost of medical care in hospitals," Hirschowitz said.

The problem last night was how to get care centers built in the bootheel area. Imagination must be used. he said.

A meeting has been set for May 26 at Malden to further discuss the situation.

STREET PAVING opened this week on South Stoddard street, east of the senior citizen housing complex.

COOLING THOUGHTS

It's a great country we have, and the easiest way to prove it is to scan the news as reported in the grass- roots newspapers of the nation. A few days ago, for example, most of the news from around the country painted written scenes of busy husbands puffing along behind buzzing lawnmowers under the hot sun while mother prepared iced tea to serve as a cooling drink.

It was with interest, then, that we noted, on the same Spring day, a contrasting weather report in the Fairbanks, Alaska Daily News- Miner - America's farthest north daily newspaper. It read as follows:

"The forecast for Fairbanks and vicinity calls for snow and brisk winds today, with one to two inches new snow, mostly in high elevations. Decreasing cloudiness with a chance of snow tonight. Partly cloudy Saturday. Colder today and tonight, warmer Saturday. High today, 35-40; low tonight, 20-25. Precipitation probabilities 100 per cent today, 40 per cent tonight, 10 per cent Saturday. Temperature at 11:30 a.m. today was 30 degress. Winds southwest at 20 knots. Record high for this date, 67 in 1940; and record low, 10 below zero in 1948. Sunrise Saturday at 3:41 a.m. and sunset at 8 p.m. for 16:19 of sunlight, a gain of six minutes over today."

The coldest point in the State of Alaska, reported the News- Miner, was Point Barrow, where the mercury dropped to one degree above zero.

So, when you pause from your lawn- mowing chores to mop your brow (and sip a bit of that iced tea!) just think of how nice and comfortably cool it is in our big state of Alaska!

BOSTON'S NEXT ARCHBISHOP

Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, has said that he will retire on his 75th birthday anniversary, which falls on Aug. 24. The search for a successor already is under way. A committee set up by the cardinal is polling priests with the objective of finding four candidates for the job of heading the second largest Roman Catholic archdiocese in the United States.

A second, far more extensive poll will be taken on Sunday, May 17, by an independent group called the Boston Lay Caucus. It will sound out opinion of laymen in the archdiocese on the qualifications the next archbishop should possess. Unlike the cardinal's poll, the survey of laity will mention no names. The idea is to draw up a profile of a presumably ideal archbishop and then to find a candidate to match.

The laity will be asked, among other things, if they think the next archbishop should serve for a specified number of years or (as at present) for life. Cardinal Cushing will have served 26 years as archbishop when he steps down. His predecessor, William Cardinal O'Connell, was archbishop for 38 years. Another question will ask which three of the following issues the next archbishop should most concern himself with-- youth, poverty, racial justice, world peace, lay participation in church decisions, family planning, Catholic school problems, Confraternity of Christian Doctrine problems.

Results of the Boston Lay Caucus poll will be submitted to Cardinal Cushing and other members of the local church hierarchy. Neither the cardinal nor any of his bishops has commented publicly on the poll. The aim of the survey of laity is implicit but clear. As a Boston Lay Caucus spokesman told Editorial Research Reports, "Next Time, hopefully, we'll be able to elect an archbishop."

FAR-LEFT LAWYER TO HANDLE APPEAL

A lawyer who has invoked the Fifth Amendment on congressional testimony will direct the appeal of the contempt of court verdict against the "Chicago 7" and their attorneys, William Kunstler and Leonard I. Weinglass, according to Human Events.

Morton I. Stavis will head the legal team that will appeal the sentences to the Supreme Court. Legal and financial assistance is expected from the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee and the National Lawyers Build, both of which have been cited as official Communist fronts.

Stavis, a long- time colleague of Kunstler, is himself skilled at confusing courtroom proceedings. In 1952, for instance, he served as defense attorney for Sylvia Neff, who was convicted in federal court of perjury in denying Communist connections. The federal judge who tried the case charged Stavis with "throwing sand and legal gravel in the eyes of the jury." Looking directly at Stavis, the judge said:

"I have never had my patience tried so much before. You tried me so thoroughly that I had to go to a doctor so I could stay on the bench to conclude the trial... You followed the obvious line of the Communist party to such an extent that it was open and obvious to the jury what your methods were."

Stavis, whose Communist- front record dates back three decades, was called before the House Committee on Un- American Activites in 1956. He and his wife, who was also subpoenaed, both invoked the Fifth Amendment when questioned about Communist party membership.

And yet we listen to some of our brethren in the newspaper world caterwauling in defense of the "Chicago 7' and their legal counsel as being denied a fair trial and their right to dissent against the so- called establishment.

At least we know whose side they are on -- along with some other fellow - travelers who fall for Communist party propaganda and ignore what has happened to individual freedom elsewhere in the world today.

THE EDITOR SAYS..

By EDWARD W. SOWERS

A situation has arisen in the Rolla public school system which demands the immediate attention of the public!

Inasmuch as the Board of Education seems unable or unwilling to cope with an operational budget, loaded with luxury items by an affluent- minded administration, it becomes necessary for public exposure to disclose the critical nature of the situation.

Instead of trying to "live" and operate within available funds, the administration has continued with what some term "luxury items" until the treasury has reportedly run dry. And, in order to obtain more money for operational funds, the Board of Education, evidently "snowed" by rich- blooded administrators, voted recently to sell an ideal 18- acre tract which was purchased some eight or ten years ago "as a site for future school facilities!"

The site in question is the Arvil Murry tract, located just south of East 10th Street. It is now almost surrounded by quality housing developments. With foresight and good judgment, the Board some 10 years ago priced several sites and found them unavailable at that time "at almost any price" and some, such as the Williams tract, simply not for sale.

So a member of the Board went to Mr. Murry, asked him to sell them the 18- acre tract. He did not want to sell it as it was already laid out for restricted, quality housing, and was quite valuable. But the board member prevailed upon Mr. Murry to part with it and offered him $2,000 an acre. ("We were prepared to offer him up to $2,500 an acre," the board member said recently).

Instead, Mr. Murry said he would sell it to the board for $1,400 an acre (taking $1,100 an acre less than the Board was prepared to pay), "if you will give me a contract to assure me and my homesite purchasers that it will be used strictly for school facilities."

The Board quickly snapped up that generous offer, and Beauford Robinson, then superintendent of schools, signed the contract with Murry for the tract, which was approved by state authorities.

Now that the tract has become worth several times the $25,000 paid for it - and the only available tract left for schools inside the city limits AT ANY PRICE- the Board of Education has voted to sell it to raise money for current operations! This analysis does not necessarily reflect on all members of the Board; we undestand it is sharply divided on some subjects.

The thing that "bugs" the few school patrons who know about it is the "bits and pieces" of "luxury items" which have been seeping out in the school's reckless administration during recent months.

EXAMPLE: A school "business manager" or "budget officer" was imported in here at a reported annual cost of around $20,000 (plus a fantastic moving allowance) when several level-headed, tough- minded Rolla businessmen were willing to take the job for one- third of that cost.

EXAMPLE: The vocational shop boys of R.H.S. built a fine home, appraised at $28,000, and offered it for sale, as they had done quite successfully before, but instead it was "appropriated" by the Board of Education and is now being occupied, rent free, by the superintendent of schools.

EXAMPLE: Walnut- paneled and wall- to- wall carpeted executive offices have been constructed and occupied WHILE A 20 per cent CUTBACK IN TEACHING AIDS HAS BEEN AUTHORIZED for this year.

EXAMPLE: Two local car dealers provided cars for Driver Education and were moved to repossess them when it became known that top administrators were using them, instead.

These are only a few of the items which have "seeped out" without any investigation on our part. If such ridiculous things are happening, and if the Board of Education hasn't the backbone to correct them, then a full- scale investigation seems in place.

If the school is so desperate for operational funds then we respectfully suggest a way to raise $50,000 quickly: (a) sell the house occupied by the superintendent for $30,000 and (b) do without the "business manager" and save another $20,000 (in our book $20,000 saved is $20,000 earned).

These figures may be "off" a little, but there are probably other ways, too, to save money and operate the schools without selling off a needed and prime building site to private interests who, reportedly, want it for a truck terminal or trailer court.

If the school MUST be operated so grandly - and MORE money MUST be had - then let us put on the block- instead of the needed building site- say, Mark Twain School and grounds (it would make a fine warehouse and truck station); or, Pershing School (it would make a good fraternity or boarding house). Or, we could sell off some of the classroom desks and let the kids sit on stools and do their numbers on persimmon bark. If we must be ridiculous, let's be real ridiculous!

A More Meaningful Frendh

France's battle against an invasion of English words continues, as the English-speaking world gets even for what William the Conqueror did to the Anglo- Saxon language in 1066.

The latest edition of the Petit Larousse, the most widely used dictionary in France, recognizes "happening," "poster" and "campus," among other new words.

This to the despair of French language purists, who very quickly lose their savior faire of sangfroid or whatever when they contemplate their beautiful language turning into the hybrid corruption they call "Franglais."

But foreign words are not adopted by everyday people unless they fill a need better than a native word.

And anyway, if it doesn't bother an American or Englishman to take his car to a "garage" to have its "chassis" inspected, it only seems right that French students should be allowed to hold "le riot" on "le campus."

USEFUL TIPS (SOME NEW, SOME REMINDERS): When you hang up a jacket, take everything out of the pockets; in the case of trousers, remove belt or suspenders and zip up the fly. Both will look better the next day ... Sometimes a shirt collar is wrinkled before you ever wear it, particularly from being packed while traveling. Try dampening the collar at night, pressing it against the flat inside wall of the bathtub and it will be neat and wearable the next morning ... When storing a seldom worn hat on a shelf, turn up the brim all around and push all dents out of crown. It will keep the hat in shape for the future.

Fly Now, Rest Later

"Time zone fatigue," sometimes called "jet lag fatigue," is a familiar phenomenon to business executives who fly through a series of time zones during the course of a trip.

The fatigue is caused not by travel itself but is due to the fact that many functions of the human body operate on a rhythm of 24 hours, called the circadian rhythm.

Body temperature, for instance, is highest in the afternoon and lowest in the morning; blood pressure goes down greater during the day. For these reasons, many companies advise a period of rest and adjustment for their executives before they conduct business.

At least one transatlantic carrier is now taking advantage of this human frailty. Irish International Airlines offers a relaxing, low-cost one- to three-day stopover in Ireland for businessmen suffering from time zone fatigue.

Progress is wonderful. When the new supersonic jet-liners start flying, people will be able to take even longer getting to their destinations.

DESTITUTION AHEAD

It is one thing for the experts, the economists and the politicians -- as well as a lot of businessmen -- to discuss in a rather detached manner how much inflation is tolerable. In reality, what is being discussed is how much the purchasing power of the dollar can be reduced each year without upsetting the applecart. As far as those living in the most productive time of their lives, a drop of a few percentage points in the value of money can be absorbed or made up in the value of money can be a one-way street to destitution.

There is no escape from those who live on fixed incomes -- retired persons and others, who for one reason or another, must make do with a fixed number of dollars. These people are in the minority. But, they are U.S. citizens, and they deserve the same consideration as those for whom so much effort is being put forth in the name of equal rights and equal opportunitties. The dollars they hold are government promises that can be exchanged for necessities. Inflation, regardless of its rage, is a repudiation of those promises.

Computer Works For Road Safety

A system that simulates in a computer the performance of a driver and his car at complex intersections has been developed by Carnell Aeronautical Laboratory to study techniques for improving driver capability and as an aid in designing safer highways.

The computer model of various types of intersections represents an altogether new approach for describing and simulating human behavior while driving, Dr. Edwin A. Kidd, acting head of the Laboratory's Transportation Research Department, said. More specifically, the computer model numerically describes in detail what the driver sees, the decisions he makes and how he responds as he approaches, passes through and leaves an intersection controlled by various traffic devices, he noted. In fact, the computer model can even simulate the careless driver and predict intersection collisions.

Dr. Kidd said one of the most neglected aspects of our roadways and their environments is the intersection, where some 25 per cent of all traffic deaths occur year after year, despite the growth of limited-access highways, which do not have intersections.

H.L. Hunt Says

AN ALTERNATIVE AT THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

In February 1969, rioting and violence by a militant minority of students upset the campus of the University of Wisconsin. When the student newspaper, the "Daily Cardinal," supported the radicals, a group of constructive students decided to start their own newspaper.

According to Editor- in - Chief Patrick Korten, "We decided the campus needed a newspaper that would serve all the students, not just a radical propaganda sheet that favored things most students opposed." The newspaper, the "Badger Herald," appeared last fall and has been welcomed by many students, faculty and administrators, and by several members of the University Board of Regents. One student wrote: "Most students here don't want their country destroyed, and it's about time we had a student newspaper that said so!"

The radical Daily Cardinal receives a subsidy from the university, while the Badget Herald is financed solely by advertising revenue. Commented Wade Smith, Herald advertising manager: "We don't get a nickel of the taxpayer's money, but that's the way we want it."

Because they receive no subsidy and distribute the paper free, the Herald staff constantly faces financial problems. But their determination to keep the newspaper alive has so far enabled them to surmount these difficulties. According to Korten, "from every other aspect than the financial, the Herald has been a success."

He went on to say: "What we've done here can be done again at every college campus where the student newspaper ignores the interests of the moderate many to cater to the depraved tastes of the radical few." Constructive young people on other campuses should follow the excellent example of these Wisconsin students. HLH.

"Get up and go earn me a living."

"Well, if it is burned a little, just scrape it off."

"I know one thing for sure: if I ever marry a second time, it certainly won't be for love. I've tried that."

"How did I know that you had beef stew for lunch? What am I supposed to be—a mind reader?"

"You must be the laughingstock of your office, the way you do all the work and everybody else gets all the credit—and the money."

"Harry, you're driving too fast!"

"What do you mean, why can't I make it last another year? Do you realize how long I've had that fur coat? I bought it three years before we were married and I paid for it myself —no thanks to you."

"Is it all right if I throw away this cigar stub, or would you rather I wrapped it in a plastic bag and keep it in the freezer until you feel like stinking up the house with it again?"

"Dinner is served, your Royal Highness. Would it be too much trouble for you to get up off the sofa and eat it?"

"The children have behaved like perfect little devils all day. I want you to punish them this very minute—before you even take your shoes off."

"Harry, you're driving too slow. We'll never get there at this rate."

"Why should I give you an extra 50 cents for lunch today? You still owe me half a dollar from the day before yesterday."

"When I think of all the men I could have married!"

"Harry, I work my fingers to the bone keeping house for you, and what appreciation do I get? None! I guess the old saying is true—it's the second wife that gets the maid."

"I don't mind your not noticing it when I wear a new dress, but at least I thought you could tell the difference when I put on a wig."

"Don't tell me what kind of a day you had until I tell you what kind of a day I had."

"I can't help it if the way you drive makes me nervous, Harry."

"We go out so seldom anymore that I feel I'm in jail and you've thrown away the key."

"All right, children, let's all kneel down and touch our foreheads to the floor—here comes the lord and master himself, home at last."

"Please put down that newspaper, Harry. Do you realize it has been 12 years since I saw your face at breakfast?"

"Sometimes when I think about our marriage, I can't help wondering whether the best years of my life haven't been the worst ones."

"When you take the car out of the garage, Harry, promise me you won't look at the right front fenders."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- The dramatic appearance of red China's "singing satellite" in lazy orbit around the world has sent Western intelligence experts scrambling to assess its impact upon the world power balance.

Here are the careful conclusions of U.S. intelligence:

1. The Chinese Communists will have a prototype intercontinental ballistic missile, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead from China to the West Coast, within five years. A year or two after the prototype has been tested, China should have a limited production of ICBMs.

2. The Chinese missile- space technology is still an estimated 20 years behind that of the United States. Since the U.S. is also moving at a faster pace, this technological gap should widen, not close.

3. The Chinese, flushed over their emergence as a nuclear power, can be expected to test U.S. intentions during the post-Vietnam period. The most likely trouble spot, in the opinion of U.S. strategists, would be the Quemoy- Matsu offshore islands.

My associate Les Whitten has flown to the Far East to report on the escalating Indochina crisis and related behind-the- scenes developments. From Hong Kong, the West's window upon Red China, he wrotes that the Chinese most likely will deploy their first ICBMs on two fronts.

Some Chinese ICBMs will be aimed at targets in Russia across the border from the mystery-bound research centers and launching pads of Sinkiang. Others will be zeroed in on American targets across the Pacific. Military bases in Alaska are only 2,500 miles over the Arctic from Sinkiang.

NO OVERT ATTACK SEEN

Meanwhile, a U.S. intelligence summary, drawn up for high-level eyes only, offers a grim analysis of the peace prospects in Asia.

"Chicom (Chinese Communist) aspirations for political dominance in Asia will persist after any negotiated settlement in Vietnam," declares the summary, "but it is unlikely that they would launch an overt attack or seize territory in Vietnam or elsewhere in the near future."

The most likely Chinese tactic: "Pressure on the offshore island might appeal to Peking as a test of U.S. intentions in the post- Vietnam period."

The report, however, states: "Whatever modifications in Chicom policy flow from its advance into the satellite and nuclear age, the principal threat from China will, for many years, be its financial and material support of subversion and revolutionary activity.

"Such activity will be conducted mainly in Southeast Asia where it relates most closely to Peking's interest," not in Africa or even Latin America where the Chinese have made diplomatic subversive passes, the summary concludes.

The intelligence report estimated Peking will not invade Taiwan "as long as it is reluctant to engage in a military confrontation" with the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

Concerning foreign policy, the report is guarded: "The prospects of Mao's departure overshadows all other considerations" by Chinese officials. It warns that "a China beginning to realize some of its potential in the economic and advanced weapons field could become a far more formidable force in Asia than in Maoist China."

NASSER ONCE CONCILIATORY

Insiders weren't surprised over reports that Gamal Nasser, the strident Egyptian president, and Nahum Goldmann, the sly World Jewish Congress chairman, were willing to sit down together to explore a Middle East settlement.

For a similar meeting took place 20 years ago after the first Arab- Israeli war. Nasser was then a proud combat major. He met at Faluja with a Jewish friend and wartime foe,, Yeroham Cohen, to point out the graves of Israeli battle dead who had been buried with full military honors on Nasser's orders.

The incident is disclosed by famed war correspondent Dan Kurzman in his new book, "Genesis 1948," a monumental chronicle of the first Arab-Israeli conflict. An advance copy of the manuscript has been slipped to this column.

Kurzman reports that Nasser and Cohen, as they walked among the graves, recalled an earlier parley during the war.

"Do you remember, Yeroham," asked Nasser, "when we sat on the grass and I told you I didn't think I would ever see my wife and daughter again?"

"Yes, Gamal. And I told you that you would not only see your daughters but would have a son as well."

"Well," said Nasser, "I've got a son."

Recounts Kurzman: "That night, Cohen, on returning to Tel Aviv, sent a package of baby clothes to his Egyptian friend. It was too bad, he reflected, that a man like Gamal Abdel Nasser was not running Egypt."

Kurzman also writes of Nasser's reaction when he viewed the shattered bodies and listened to the cries of his comrades in a hospital.

"If ever I should occupy an official position," mused Nasser "I shall think a thousand times before dragging my men into war. I would only do so when the Fatherland was threatened.

Ann Landers

Grandmother Takes Great Step But Suffers Guilt Feelings About Decision

Dear Ann Landers: Today was the saddest day of my life. I took my granddaughter to the police station. I asked the authorities to put her in a home for unruly girls. She is only 15.

The girl's parents are divorced and I took her to raise when she was seven. She was always a sweet, reliable girl. About two years ago she began to smart- mouth me and tell fantastic lies. I became worried when she took up with some weird looking characters.

This year she began to skip school. For punishment I kept her in every evening for a week. This made her so mad she ran away. The police found her sleeping in an abandoned building -- filthy, starved and hollow- eyed. She looked like a dope addict.

We had a long talk. She cried and promised to straighten around--- said she had learned her lesson. I believed her. Two months later she was as wild as ever --- running with these strange looking kids and behaving as if she was drunk or drugged. I knew she was on something but I didn't know what.

The final straw was today when she was so drowsy I couldn't wake her up. I thought she was unconscious. When she finally came to, I decided to turn her in. Did I do the right thing, Ann?I feel so guilty. She was too much for me to handle alone. She needs help and I can't help her. Please say I did the right thing, Ann. -- Heartsick Gram.

Dear Gram: Yes, you did the right thing, dear. I am only sorry you didn't do it sooner. Good luck and God bless.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a barber. Vince puts in a hard full day's work at the shop and when he comes home at night I want him to relax. He had a heart attack two years ago and we nearly lost him. The problem is our friends and relatives won't let him alone. They keep telling him he's the world's greatest barber (which he is) and nobody knows how to cut hair the way he does. So nearly every night Vince winds up giving free haircuts.

Sunday, which should be his day of rest, Vince's sister brought over her three sons. The boys will not go to a barber shop because too much gets cut off--according to their mother. "They don't really want a haircut," she said. "Just trim it so they can see." The haircuts took an hour and a half and Vince took quite a lot of lip because they didn't want to look like "skinheads."

They no sooner left when my brother showed up. He wanted not only a haircut but a beard trim, which takes time. Tonight it was the neighbor and her two boys. Tomorrow it'll be somebody else. What can we do to put a stop to this without getting people mad?-- Just His Wife

Dear Wife: When Vince goes to the Shop tomorrow have all his home haircutting equipment in a nice big box. Tell him to keep it down there. When a fur-bearing freeloader comes, say, 'Sorry -- no more haircutting at home. Doctor's orders." If you want to get specific, tell them the "doctor's" name is Landers.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have a drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read 'Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Sewing Expert To Demonstrate Techniques

This demonstration will be held Thursday and Friday, not Wednesday and Thursday as stated in Tuesday's Daily Standard.

A home economist in touch with tastes of today's youth will be in Sikeston at Necchi Sewing Circle demonstrating sewing techniques possible with new White and Elna sewing machines.

Twenty-two year old Wanda Roden, native of North Dakota, brings the viewpoint of youth -- and her own eager enthusiasm -- along with her while traveling as a sewing demonstrator for the White Sewing Machine Company.

1—Slit container and remove. Be careful not to disturb ball of soil around roots.

3—Half fill hole with soil, then water

2—Carefully set plant in hole which should be deep enough that bud union will be one inch below the ground level.

4—When water has disappeared, finish filling hole with soil and pack. Leave depression around plant as in picture for watering when needed. When leveled the bud union will be slightly below ground level.

FASHIONS!

NEW YORK (AP) -- The fall collection by Bill Blass for Maurice Rentner has a rich, lush look-sable hats, Beautifully tailored wools, gold boots, evening velvets and extravagant jewelry.

Prices range from about $325 to $2,500. Raincoats are less. So far, there's no hope of a boutique collection from Blass.

"To me, it isn't valid. To achieve that look, you have to use the most expensive fabrics. You can't translate it," he said.

Blass, who sat on a railing to narrate the show at the Plaza Hotel, said he most enjoyed doing the tailored day clothes. One dashing look was a country plaid cape over belted tunic and pants, tucked into over-the-knee boots by David Evins. Hats by Adolfo included bandage turbans and broad- brimmed felts.

Evening clothes ran the gamut from kimonos complete with Japanese wigs by Lupe to split level mini-midi chiffons. A Persian print panne velvet was worn with red snakeskin boots and wild gold necklace by William de Lillo.

One particularly good series was in dark green: cape, midi-dress trimmed in sable, coat, green satin blouse over green velvet skirt-over green boots.

HAPPY ENDING, playing opposite BLOODY MAMA at Malco Twin Cinema, is a very unusual movie. It reminded me of Neil Simon's APRIL FOOLS... because a woman who has everything material she wants is emotionally distressed. However, Mrs. Wilson is not interested in a love affair... tends toward alcoholism... and is not fulfilled...

Her daughter and husband each live a full life, but she is not directly involved with either of them.

Whether her life will have the movie-fantasy HAPPY ENDING she seeks is a conclusion the viewer must find for himself... romanticists will enjoy this movie more than sex movie fans or blood-and- guts fans. The latter will enjoy BLOODY MAMA, the review of which will appear Thursday.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Now that it's beginning to look like Richie Allen will hit 50 home runs for the St. Louis Cardinals, the test comes down to distance per swat.

Allen, facing his erstwhile Philadelphia Phillie teammates a first time, unloaded a powerful, 410-foot roundtripper Monday night.

The blow, however, was anemic by comparison with the Ruthian punch he drove out of Busch Stadium Tuesday night to power the Cardinals past the Phils 9-5.

In clearing stadium club booths in left field, Allen became only the fifth player to loft a hit into the Cardinals' second tier of seats.

Still rising as it cannoned into the concrete above stadium club glass, it ranked on a par with a homer Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants launched into right field in 1968.

McCovey's wallop sailed into an exit 90 feet above the playing field. Others who have reached the upper deck are the Cardinals' Mike Shannon, the Phillies' Deron Johnson and ex-Cardinal Orlando Cepeda.

"Of those that have been hit, the ones by Allen and McCovey were by far the hardest," Cardinal Manager Red Schoendienst said. "The others were fly balls."

Shannon, the idled Cardinal infielder who watched the Allen clout from the press box, agreed.

"Mine was a high fly," he said. "Richie will hit some further than that one, you can bet. I've already seen him hit some in practice."

In Philadelphia's dressing room, Johnson called Allen's shot "one of the hardest balls I've seen hit." and added, "mine hit the glass about three or four years ago."

Allen's mighty homer, his 11th of the season and third in three games, came on a 3-1 count in the fifth inning off Phillie reliever Lowell Palmer, who had taken over for starter Chris Short two innings earlier.

"I got behind him and had to give him the pitch he wanted instead of the one I wanted," Palmer said.

With Lou Brock aboard, the Allen blow boosted the Cardinals ahead 6-5 after they earlier trailed 5-1.

Allen also doubled Brock home in the first and bounced out to score winning pitcher Chuck Taylor in the sixth.

A 14-hit Cardinal attack also included four singles by Brock and Joe Hague-s four-RBI performance off a bases-loaded double and a sacrifice fly.

N.L. Stats Show Hitters Ahead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National League office offered some statistics Monday to show what pitchers already know — the baseball is being hit more often and farther.

But NL President Charles Feeney reaffirmed that there has been no change in manufacture of the league ball.

After 174 games, figures show 428 homers have been hit this season, 192 more than the 236 through 174 games last season.

In other categories, 185 more runs have been scored, the number of doubles has increased by 67, and triples by 23.

Last weekend produced 63 home runs in the National League, counting games of Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Feeney said some new baseballs with his signature have been introduced, but that most of the balls were left over from last season and bear the signature of former NL President Warren Giles.

Feeney's office released a statement from Paul F. Collins, president of the A. G. Spalding Co., which manufacutres baseballs for both major leagues.

"No change in the manufacturing of the baseballs has been requested or made this year, last year or the past 45 years," it said.

Some players, coaches and managers say the extra slugging is because players are going to lighter bats.

Others, particularly pitching coach Larry Jansen of the San Frnacisco Giants, maintain the manufacturer is putting a ruberized glue just under the cover of the new balls, making them livelier.

Feeney says several factors are involved — pitchers are usually behind the hitters in their development at this time of the season, players are bigger, on the average, and that hitters are using lighter and skinnier bats, enabling them to swing harder.

Lafayette Blanks Hillsboro, 16-0

FESTUS — Lafayette of St. Louis moved into sectional play of the Missouri high school baseball tournament yesterday by pasteing Hillsboro, 16-0. It will face Sikeston in a 4 p.m. game Friday at Ste. Genevieve.

Brien Kirenkamp fired a one hitter and was backed by a 16-hit attack. He fanned seven, walked one and hit one batter in five innings of work.

Bill Hayes and Jim Viehaus collected three hits apiece for the Lancers and drive in four and three runs respectively.

Hillsboro's only safety came from starting pitcher, Steve Steighorst, who had little backing as eight errors were committed by the Hawks nine.

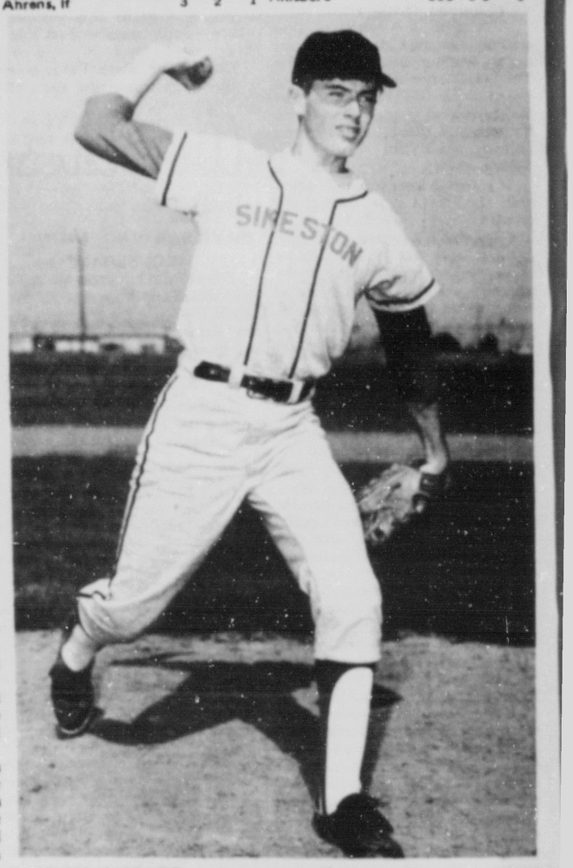

The Lancers were second in the state last year, losing to Kansas City Oak Park 5-1.

Conservation Commission Statement on Scenic Rivers

With the announced withdrawal of the petition to enact scenic rivers preservation legislation via the initiative and referendum, the Conservation Commission feels it is now appropriate to speak out on preservation of free- flowing streams of the State. Circumstances surrounding recent scenic rivers preservation proposals were such that the Commission felt it could not comment, other than to endorse the principle, without improperly affecting the outcome of the proposals. The scenic river petition proposal was drawn up and initiated without the advice or sponsorship of this Commission.

The Commission had reservations about House Bill 432 and the more recent scenic rivers petition. Before other proposals are put forward by interested groups, the Commission would like to make known what it considers basic to establish and administer a scenic rivers system.

The Commission feels impelled to present its ideas on basic provisions because it, and its Department of Conservation, repeatedly have been deemed the appropriate administrators of a scenic rivers system, as in both the initiative petition proposal and the House Bill 432. The Commission agrees that it is porbably the proper agency to do this because of its past history in stream preservation, its close affiliation with the resources of fish, water and forests and their administration, and because Missourians consider it the major conservation agency in the state. Throughout its history, the Commission's programs have been based on cooperation with landowners. The Commission has always recognized that land use and resources are firmly bound together in an ecological entity.

No proposal should overlook the fact that the Conservation Commission must represent all interests in the State, both rural and urban. Therefore, the Commission feels that any proposal must be a balance between the interests of the general public and those landowners involved. All aspects must be considered or a scenic river system cannot be effective.

The Commission believes five fundamental considerations should be a part of any scenic rivers system proposal administered by the Conservation Commission:

1. It should be created by a constitutional amendment, so no question is likely to be raised as to the right of the Commission to administer the system.

2. It should have dedicated monies to fund the system as an integral part of the constitutional amendment, so that there is assurance that these "earmarked" funds will be available for the intended purpose.

3. The source of revenue and means of funding should be specified in the constitutional provisions.

4. Minimum land rights sought should be scenic easement, but broader rights may be desirable in thypublic interest. Any rights acquired should be purchased-- from a willing seller.

5. Purchase of rights should be on a negotiated basis in an initial period, the landowner to receive fair compensation for any rights offered.

The Commission feels these basic considerations are important to the landowner, the citizen conservationist and to the Department of Conservation. Each has a stake in these safeguards. The landowner knows this Commission has a history of good relations with landowners and has always insisted they be treated fairly. The provisions outlined will establish a system funded to safeguard their interests.

The citizen conservationist helped set up this constitutional conservation agency in 1936, with dedicated funds

CARL NOREN, director of the Missouri Department of Conservation, talks with the members of the Missouri Conservation Program team whose year- long study of the Department will result in an ambitious future conservaton program. Team members are Charles Callison (left), executive vice- president of the National Audubon Society; Dr. A. Starker Leopold (second from right), University of California forestry professor and chairman of the group; and Irvg Fox (right), University of Wisconsin professor. SECOND IN A WEEKLY SERIES ON HITTING

Aaron Tests Eyes With Loud Fouls

By HANK AARON
Of Atlanta Braves
Written for AP Newsfeatures

The most important thing for a young hitter to learn is that he must be aggressive at the plate. Don't be lazy at the plate. Attack the baseball.

I believe that you must go out and get that ball, hit it when it's out in front rather than wait until it passes the plate.

When I'm at the plate I watch different things that certain pitcher's do. For instance, take an Abernathy. Ted was with Cincinnati last year and got in a lot of games (78) and now he's with the Cubs.

He is the most unorthodox pitcher in baseball. He throws the ball from way down under, and sometimes fools you by bringing his motion from the direction of third base. He's strictly a relief pitcher and you don't see him too much. But with him I watch his left knee and try to pick the ball up from there. You get a better chance to watch this motion from the on deck circle. It's always good to study a pitcher when you're standing or kneeling in the "on deck" circle.

With some pitchers I try to pick the ball up from their shoulders and with some others I try to pick it up from their waistline. It all depends on how the pitcher is delivering the ball.

I try to hit the ball back through the middle but even then I try to hit the ball hard, whether it's over the plate, inside or outside. Some of the better hitters tell you when you're in a slump to try to hit the ball up the middle. That will help you to keep your head still.

But I like to get in there and hit the ball real hard. I like to hit it foul a couple of times, but real hard, and then I feel like I have my eye on the ball.

Some hitters get set for the fastball and then adjust to the curve. It all depends on the type of pitcher you are facing. When Sandy Koufax was pitching you had to just hope you could hit anything he threw up there. It's the same way with Bob Gibson. He's fast and he's always moving the ball around. Tom Seaver and Juan Marichal are that way, too.

With some pitchers I look to hit their curve ball and then I find I can hit their fastball. That's only because they are not that overpowering.

When I'm in the batter's box, or even in the on deck circle, I'm always studying the pitcher. Once I put on that uniform I'm steadily concentrating on the pitcher.

Second Anniversary Finds Peace Talks Deadlocked

PARIS (AP) — Today is the second anniversary of the peace talks on Vietnam.

The talks began May 13, 1968, in the old Majestic Hotel near the Arch of Triumph. That was after President Lyndon B. Johnson announced a partial halt to the bombing of North Vietnam, and his simultaneous decision to refuse re-election.

In the first nine months the two chief negotiators, W. Averell Harriman of the United States and Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam, resolved none of the main issues but regularly met in private to iron out procedural problems.

By January 1969, when President Nixon took office, Harriman and Thuy had agreed to bring South Vietnam and the Viet Cong into the talks.

They also reached a tacit understanding—never openly acknowledged by Hanoi—for a total halt in American bombing of North Vietnam in exchange for a North Vietnamese undertaking to reduce infiltration across the demilitarized zone and to stop large-scale rocket attacks on South Vietnamese cities.

Backstage friction arose between Harriman and the South Vietnamese representatives, including for a time Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who accused the American negotiator of allowing himself to be "taken in by the Communists."

Nixon named Henry Cabot Lodge, former U. S. envoy in Saigon, to replace Harriman. But the talks were freezing into a sterile repetition of propaganda speeches by both sides. Week after week, the four delegations read prepared statements accusing each other of refusing to negotiate.

Lodge repeatedly pleaded in vain with Thuy to resume private discussions. Thuy's refusal to do so stemmed from Hanoi's apparently unshakable determination to have no dealing with the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Thuy offered to hold three-sided talks, including the United States and the Viet Cong. Lodge refused to be drawn into such a disavowal of Saigon, or to give implicit recognition to the Viet Cong claim to speak for the South Vietnamese population.

A year ago, the Viet Cong produced a 10 point plan, still the basis of its negotiating posture, and Hanoi's . . . Essentially, the plan called for establishment of a coalition regime in Saigon, including Viet Cong representatives, accompanied by total withdrawal of American and other allied foreign troops.

The United States and South Vietnam replied with a demand for simultaneous, phased withdrawal of U.S. and North Vietnamese troops—accompanied by free elections organized, under international control, by the present Saigon goverment.

At the same time, the United States began withdrawing some of its troops under Nixon's plan to Vietnamize the war. Hanoi denounced this as a maneuver to keep the Thieu regime in power and thereby prolong the war.

The United States refuses to discuss a coalition regime not based on free elections. Hanoi refuses to discuss elections controlled by the present Saigon government.

The United States refuses to commit itself to total withdrawal of its troops without a similar commitment from Hanoi while Hanoi—which has never formally acknowledged the presence of its troops in the South— implicitly makes establishment of a coalition regime the basic condition for its withdrawal. The circle is complete.

Discouraged by the deadlock, Lodge withdrew from the U.S. delegation in November. Nixon appointed Philip C. Habib, formerly third-ranking member of the delegation, as chief negotiator.

Thuy denounced this as a downgrading of the conference and has boycotted the sessions ever since. To retaliate, he sent minor officials to lead his delegation, and recently announced he was leaving Paris altogether.

Hanoi and the Viet Cong abruptly canceled last week's session because of bombing raids against missile sites in North Vietnam, and the U.S. thrust into Cambodia, but indicated they would return to the table this Thursday.

Senate Calls Recess Until Next Week

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate met, did nothing and adjourned Tuesday with some senators grumbling about being called back to Jefferson City when there was no work to do.

"We're patiently waiting on the House of Representatives," said Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, the majority floor leader.

Except for a technical session later in the day for reports on House action on appropriation bills, the Senate will not reconvene until next Monday afternoon.

All bills were introduced in the House when the special session opened April 15 for a 60-day run and thus far there has been no business for the Senate to transact.

An effort to open up Senate committee voting was put aside Monday for the time being.

The proposal was discussed at a closed door session of the Senate but no action was taken. One senator said the issue is still alive and is expected to be brought up again later.

The Constitution says "the recorded vote of the members of the committee shall be filed with all reports on bills." Under Senate and House rules, this requirement has been disregarded for years.

News media have criticized the practice of secret voting but legislative leaders have said it is necessary to prevent members from being subjected to unfair pressures that could lead them to back legislation.

The Senate Appropriations Committee finished the last of its hearings Monday but Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis, chairman, said executive sessions to decide on the money requests cannot start until a revenue study by the University of Missouri and the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey is completed, perhaps next week.

Pacific Port Wants Battleship Missouri as National Monument

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — This San Francisco Bay area port city, population 14,000, wants to have the battleship Missouri brought here and established as a national monument.

Resolutions were introduced in both houses of the California Legislature Monday at Sacramento calling on the Navy to turn over the 45,000-ton ship, scene of the 1945 signing of the World War II peace treaty with Japan.

Now in mothballs at Bremerton, Wash., "Mighty Mo" was flagship of the Pacific Fleet before being retired in 1955.

"Because of the long naval tradition in the bay region, main Pacific marshalling and homecoming area, we feel this would be a more fitting permanent location than any other place in the country," said Gilbert Phelps, leader of a Martinez civic group.

The group is forming a nonprofit corporation to raise money to pay the as yet unestimated cost of towing the Missouri from Bremerton and berthing her here on an upper reach of the bay 30 miles northeast of San Francisco.

The eventual plan would be to have the U. S. Department of Interior operate the Missouri as a national monument, with a charge to visitors to defray costs of maintenance and operation.

"This would preclude any burden on local taxpayers, and incidentally it would be a saving to all taxpayers because it's costing money every day to keep the huge battlehip in mothballs, although the Navy hasn't told us yet how much," Phelps said.

"The charge to the public could be at little as 50 cents and still take care of things," he added. "The Alabama is now on similar display in Mobile and we're told she is a gold mine."

Crooked Creek Poisoned Fish Kill Hits 349,500

TROY, Mo. (AP) — Poison killed an estimated 349,500 fish and decimated about seven miles of Crooked Creek near Troy.

A warning remained in effect today for fishermen not to eat fish from Crooked Creek or Cuivre River and for farmers not to water their livestock in the creek about 40 miles northwest of St. Louis.

At first, after a deadly mixture of chlordane and malathion was dumped into a drainage ditch feeding into the creek, the fish kill was set at about 50,000.

Pete Redmon, water quality biologist for the State Conservation Department, upped the count Monday to 349,000. It was one of the largest fish populations he had ever seen in such a small stream.

He said "This is the best estimate we've ever gotten on a fish kill. We got there before scavengers like raccoons and birds began picking up fish and while the water was clear and low."

He said an inch and a half of rain Saturday raised the creek about a foot but the effect of the dilution is not yet known. Before the rain came, workers had soaked up the pesticides at the original dumping sight to prevent any more poison from being flushed into the creek.

Redmon said there had been no signs of any dead fish in Cuivre River but testing would continue. Later this week, tests will be run to determine whether surviving fish are safe.

"People around Troy are quite concerned about this," Redmon said. "We don't want to extend the warning any longer than we have to, but we have to wait several days to see if the surviving fish begin to build a residue of pesticides in their bodies."

Banned Weedkillers Due Back on Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of 270 commercial weedkillers banned from sale because an ingredient was considered an imminent hazard to human health are expected back on the market after the federal government approves new labels limiting their use.

The products were suspended April 15 after the Agriculture Department said new information indicated the ingredient—2,4,5-T—caused birth defects in laboratory mice.

A department spokesman said the suspension was ordered on the basis of the products' labels —those including instructions for use around homes, lakes, ponds and ditch banks were banned.

But no suspension was levied against 2,4,5-T—containing pesticides used to control weeds on millions of acres of range, pastures, and highway right of ways.

So, if a product containing 2,4,5-T were used mostly for such an exempt purpose but listed instructions for home use, the ban could be lifted by simply changing the label.

"Only between 5 and 10 per cent of the products suspended were strictly for uses prohibited by the order," an official said.

One source said the Agriculture Department, along with officials in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, are attempting to push applications for new registration through as soon as possible so manufacturers can take advantage of the brush-spraying season now under way in the Southwest.

Laird Pledges Job Finding Aid to Veterans

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Monday the Pentagon will soon launch a new program "to locate a job for every veteran."

Laird told the Economic Club of Detroit that the Defense Department needs help from all sectors of the country in finding what he called worthwhile jobs for many of the two million men and women who will be leaving the armed services in the next two years.

"In the weeks and months ahead, we will be calling on American business and labor leaders, state and local governments, and citizens in all walks of life to help us solve this problem," the defense chief said in a prepared speech.

Laird gave no details, saying these would be announced soon. In Washington, his aides indicated a major thrust will be aimed at encouraging service men to return to school

Laird's speech, devoted mostly to economic and related questions, touched only briefly on the Vietnam war.

In underscoring administration arguments for its new initiatives into Cambodia, Laird said:

"This action will shorten the war; it will bring American troops home faster; it will reduce our casualties."

Three to Go To Bankers Parley

Don Bohannon, First National Bank, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harbin, representing the Bank of Sikeston, will attend the 80th annual convention of the Missouri Bankers Association opening Sunday in St. Louis. The convention will continue through Tuesday.

Southern Makes Pitch for Flood Control Speedup

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Missouri state senator told a House Public Works Subcommittee Monday flood control and water supply projects should be speeded up to prevent increased costs.

Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, was designated by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to appear before the House subcommittee Tuesday.

He estimated the annual average flood damage in Missouri is more than $60 million and said delays in federal construction have held back private investment in the affected areas.

"This effect can be expected to continue until definite action toward implementing the construction program is taken," Southern said in his prepared testimony.

"In the meantime the breach between urban and rural economies continues to widen. There is reason to believe that delay can only result in increased cost to both the federal and state governments."

Armed Forces

U.S. AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. — Rabern L. Hicks, whose wife, Dixie, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Medcalf of 420 N. Locust St., Dexter, Mo., has been promoted to technical sergeant in the U.S. Air Force

Sergeant Hicks is a medical service technician at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

The sergeant, a 1960 graduate of Gray Ridge (Mo.) High School, attended Southeast Missouri State College and Southern Illinois University. He received his B.S. degree in 1969 from Southern Colorado State College.

(30BB00026B) JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (FHTNC) May 1-- Marine Private First Class Virgil L. Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Horton of 306 N. Poplar, Dexter, Mo., is serving with Marine Aircraft Group -26 at the New River Marine Corps Helicopter Air Station, Jacksonville, N.C.

(29BB02030) BEAUFORT, S.C. (FHTNC) April 30-- Marine Corporal Verhin K. Siefkes, husband of the former Miss Mary A. Siefkes of 607 Bane St., Dexter, Mo., returned from a three week deployment in Yuma, Ariz., with Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 251 (VMFA- 251) of the Marine Corps Air Station, Beaufort, S.C.

While in Yuma VMFA- 251 participated in conventional weapons delivery tactics.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 4 MAY 1970 - The base will open its gates to the public Saturday, May 16, for Armed Forces Day.

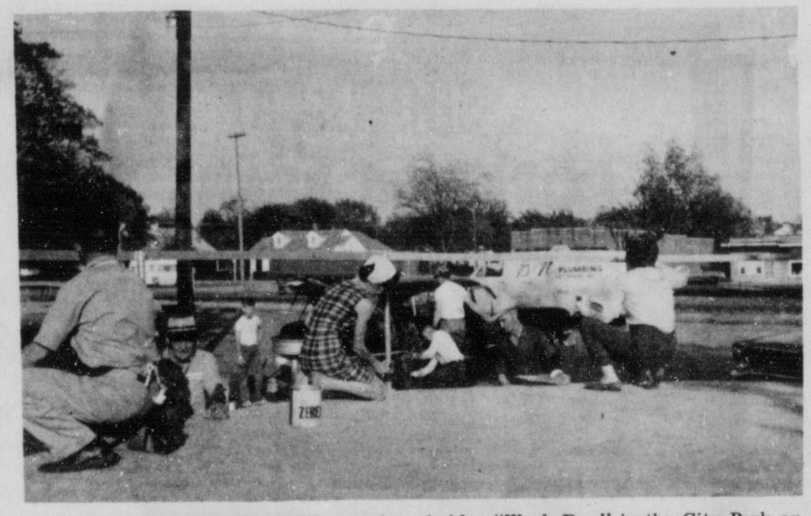

The open house, which runs from 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. will feature static displays of aircraft and hardware of the 97th Bomb Wing, as well as aircraft from three other bases.

The 3650th Pilot Training Wing, Columbus AFB, Miss., will send a T-37 and T-38 jet trainer. The 64th Tactical Airlift Wing, Little Rock AFB, Ark., is sending a C-130 Hercules assault cargo aircraft and the 164th Military Airlift Group, Memphis, Tenn., is providing a C-124 Globemaster.

The main displays will be in the nose dock area. Nose dock four, or building 455, will house displays by the Avionics Maintenance Squadron, the Airborne Missile Maintenance Squadron, the 851st Medical Group, Education and Training, a small arms display by the Security Police Squadron, a personal equipment display and continuous movie showings.

On the ramp, Aero Club aircraft will be parked with club members on hand to answer questions. Alongside their small planes will be the KC- 135 and B-52, as well as the wing's two support aircraft, the T-29 and C-47. Also on the ramp will be a Special Purpose Vehicle display, a Civil Engineer Squadron display and equipment from the base Military Affiliate Radio Station (MARS).

A special edition of the base newspaper next week will show a map of all displays and give further information on the open house. These papers will be available to all visitors.

COMMUNITY BETTERMENT members held a "Work Day" in the City Park on Main Street, East Prairie. Members in the foreground were busy painting the bandstand, while others painted tables and set out shrubs and and trees.

East Prairie Extends Clean-Up Drive

EAST PRAIRIE — The annual Spring Clean-up Drive has been extended through this week because of strong citizen support. The drive is sponsored by the Community Betterment Committee. City trucks will go out and pick up trash if property owners will call city hall.

One of the projects undertaken by the committee was the city park on Main Street. Committee members met Thursday afternoon and painted benches, tables, and the bandstand. A general clean up of the park was completed and trees were set out along the back of the park, better known as "checkboard square", since members of the "older set" gather there, weather permiting to play checkers and dominos.

$45,000 Grant Given MDEM

KENNETT — The Missouri Delta Ecumenical Ministry has announced receipt of a $45,000 grant for 1970-1971 from the Danforth Foundation in St. Louis to continue its work in assisting poor people to help themselves.

The Danforth Foundation, created by the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth in 1927, is a philanthropy concerned primarily with people and values. Presently the Foundation focuses its activities in two major areas, education and the city. In these areas the Foundation administers programs and makes grants to schools, colleges, universities and other public and private agencies.

Since its inception in 1966, MDEM has worked towards the development of cooperatives and adult basic education programs for migrants and other poor people in the Bootheel. This work was and is being supported by the Episcopal, Presbyterian, Methodist and Roman Catholic Churches.

Beginning in early 1969, MDEM was able to broaden its impact primarily because of the additional support from the Danforth Foundation. Under its expanded program, MDEM has worked on developing programs in community owned enterprises community education centers, programs for the aging (nursing home), the handicapped (sheltered workshops), housing and health. This work, in addition to expanding the base of the cooperative movement, is aimed at reducing outmigration from the area and improving the quality of lifeof the poor people in the Bootheel.

MDEM's Board of Directors is made up of ministers of various faiths, of poor black and white people and community leaders. Serving on the Board are: Father Wallace Ellinger (president), Rev. Tom Prentice (vice-president), Alex cooper (secretary), Rev. Paul Harlan (treasurer), Mrs. Helen Boswell, Joel C. Cooper, Rev. Robert W. Core, James George, A. D. Goodwin, Mrs. Fran Jones, William L. Jones, Mrs. Sara Jo Littrell, Rev. Ben Russell Richard F. Spitzer, Jr., Jack Stapleton, Mrs. Robbie Townes, W. O. Welman and Mrs. Leroy Whitener.

"In addition to exercising extreme caution over the Mother's Day weekend to help insure their safety, drivers must obey every traffic law, sign, signal. rule and regulation," Colonel Hocaday declared. "The patrol seldom investigates a traffic accident that was not caused by the violation of one or more traffic regulations."

To be a member of the Marine Corps' womens unit, a girl must be between 18 and 30 years old and unmarried.

Foreign Aid Tangle

PART OF THE FOLKLORE of Capitol Hill is that foreign aid always is in trouble. At the dawn of the 1970's, it is in greater trouble than ever. The question is not how big the aid program will be but whether there will be one at all.

Although President Nixon's $2.6 billion request for fascal 1970 was the lowest in the 22-year history of the program, Congress closed out its first session without finally approving a slimmed-down $1.86 billion appropriation. The Agency for International Development is limping along with a continuing resolution -- allowing it to spend at a rate equal to the $1.76 billion appropriated last year -- until Congress returns January 19.

Congressional disenchantment with foreign aid is nothing new. Over the years, Congress has drastically reduced Administration requests for aid funds. The biggest cuts came last year when the program was slashed by 39.7 per cent from the $2.92 billion sought by former President Johnson.

Foreign aid has been under attack from its traditional critics who charge that it is wasteful and useless, from former supporters who now decry spending abroad while the nation's own domestic priorities are in disorder, and from the ubiquitous Sen. J. William Fulbright (D Ark.). The Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman charges that foreign aid has become an entering wedge for American involvement abroad, leading to such debacles as Viet Nam.

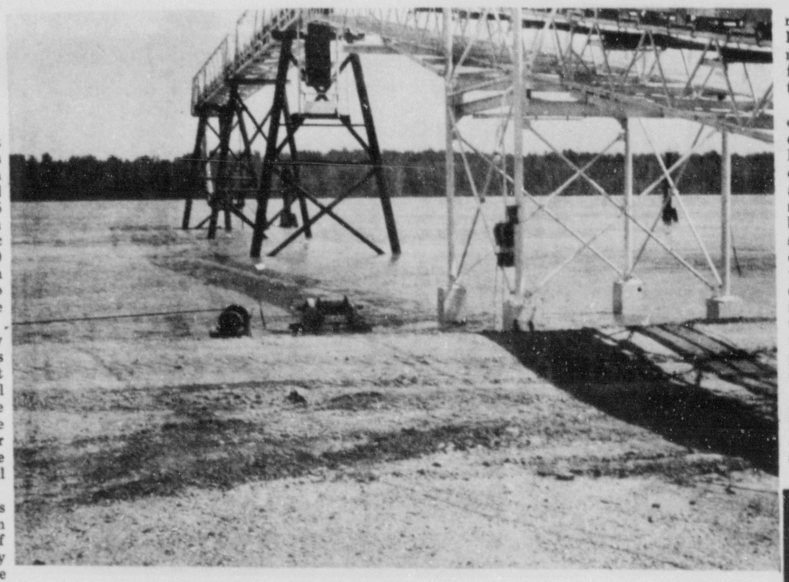

THE LOWLY STATE of foreign aid was underscored by the type of friends it managed to attract during the last session. Such long-time foes of foreign aid as Rep. Otto E. Passman (D La.) helped turn it into a Christmas tree adorned with pork-barrel amendments.

About $160 million was added to the bill for the benefit of such favored nations as Nationalist China, South Korea and and Israel. Determined Senate resistance to the $54.5 million earmarked for Taiwan for a squadron of supersonic F-4D jet fighters and the $50 million to modernize the South Korean armed forces led to rejection of the bill and the present impasse.

Development experts say that no matter what Congress does about aid upon its return, it is in for a change. Not only will the funds appropriated be considerably less than the average $3 billion earmarked for aid during the 1960's but the whole thrust of the program will be altered.

PRESIDENT NIXON has appointed a special commission headed by Rudolph Peterson, of the Bank of California, to survey the program and make recommendations for changes. Its report is due in March. Among the recommendations being seriously studied is one by the National Planning Association calling for the establishment of a Washington-based institute to take over A.I.D.'s technical assistance program. The Agency has already lost control of its investment guarantee programs, perhaps its most successful project. Direction will be lodged in an overseas Private Investment Corporation established by the current bill.

Strong efforts are also being made to channel a larger portion of U. S. foreign assistance to multilateral agencies, such as the World Band and the Inter-American Development Bank. But the big question is whether any of these changes will satisfy the critics. Through the years, foreign aid has become the most investigated program in government -- and none of the reforms has stifled the opposition.

$20,945 Grant Given To Library

ST. LOUIS — A $20,945 grant has been awarded to Wolfner Memorial Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped by the Missouri State Library, Paxton P. Price, the Librarian of the St. Louis public library, announced today.

The grant, which became effective April 1, provides funds from the library services and construction act for the expansion and improvement of library services to the handicapped.

Wolfner Library, 3844 Olive Street, is a specialized branch of the St. Louis public library, designated a regional branch of the Library of Congress, serving more than 4,200 blind and physically handicapped persons in Missouri and Kansas.

Miss Leanne Miller, who was appointed chief librarian of Wolfner in March, stated that the grant will be used to purchase two tape duplicators for reel- to- reel and cassette magnetic tapes, tape recorders and blank tapes, a Thermoform braille duplicating machine, and to secure two additional staff members to produce, a select and distribute tapes.

"Demands for tapes and tape cassettes have increased dramatically during the past year," said Miss Miller.

"Sometimes we have fifty individual readers waiting to receive one recording. By duplicating master tapes supplied by the Library of Congress, we will be able to serve more persons more quickly with needed materials."

The addition of a Thermoform braille duplicating machine, which produces one or more copies from original braille transcriptions, will be of particular aid to students who often need copies of specialized materials for their studies. Copies of these braille transcriptions are produced on special plastic copy sheets.

Future projects planned with the acquisition of new equipment include the production and distribution of a newsletter listing new additions to the Wolfner collection and other pertinent information to Wolfner Library users. The newsletter can be transcribed into braille, duplicated by the Thermoform machine and distributed to blind readers using this method.

The expanded tape program includes plans for a collection of volunteer- produced recordings of local and regional interest and to secure recorded items from other regional libraries. "However," said Miss Miller, "to take full advantage of the new equipment, we are going to need many volunteers to read books and magazines for our tapes and transcribe print into braille. Volunteers programs. Anyone wishing to assist in this work is invited to telephone the library at 533-0352."

The braille duplication and expanded tape program are the latest in a long line of improved library services provided to the blind and physically handicapped by Wolfner Library, with delivery to the borrower and return of the materials to the library handled by the U.S. Post Office Department without charge.

Alfalfa Weevil At Work

PORTAGEVILLE — Most alfalfa growers have made the first application of pesticides to their fields for the control of alfalfa weevils. This application should have been made when 50 per cent of the growing tips of alfalfa showed feeding injury.

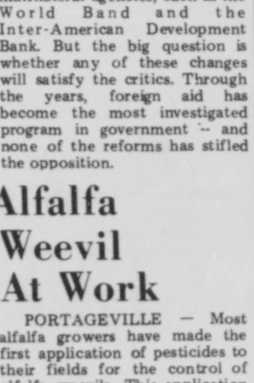

The majority of damage to alfalfa is caused by the light to dark green larvae which is a small worm with a white stripe down the middle of the back and a black head. The full grown larvae (worm) is 3/8 of an inch long. In severely damaged alfalfa fields leaves are skeletonized and the whole field has a silvery green rather than the normal green color.

Unsprayed damaged fields should be cut as soon as new shoots show at the crown rather than wait on bloom. Soon after the hay is cut and removed an insecticide should be applied to the stubble. The weevils may completely kill the alfalfa when this practice is not followed.

There are a number of chemicals which give good control of alfalfa weevil. For ground equipment 1 quart of 57 percent Malathion per acre is often used. A commercial mixture of Diazinon and Methoxychlor (Alfa- tox) at 2 quarts per acre is another one in common usage.

Commercial aerial applicators generally use Methyl Parathion to control alfalfa weevil.

Those alfalfa growers who have already sprayed will need to observe the 7 day waiting period before cutting. Those who use Methyl Parathion should wait 15 days from date of application before cutting.

SCOTT COUNTY Ramblings

by Tom Stroup

Little known fact is that bees kill more people than any other venomous creature. A study, covering 10 years, of 460 deaths due to bites or stings revealed that bees (Hymenoptera group of insects, including also wasps, hornets, etc.) caused 50 per cent of these fatalities. Snakes caused 30 per cent, spiders 14 per cent and scorpions 2 per cent of the deaths.

The number of fatal or near fatal cases due to allergic reactions is increasing. Fortunately, the first allergic reaction will not normally be fatal and thus provides a warning to the victim.

A bee sting usually leaves only painful swelling which will dissipate in a few hours. However, an allergic reaction can cause headach, dizziness, abdominal cramps, extreme nausea or itching. Difficulty in breathing, hives and swelling in a spot different from the location of the bite or sting are also warning signs of an allergy. A doctor should be seen immediately for proper treatment. Once sensitized to the venom of "Hymenoptera," a person will be allergic to the sting of all of them.

There are measures a person can take to avoid being stung. Sweet smells attract bees, so avoid strong perfumes and hari sprays, hair tonics and sun tan lotion. Floral fragrances in particular seem attractive. Brightly colored clothing or flower prints and black and dark colors seem to anger insects, at least according to some experts, so wear dull white or khaki or some neutral color for outdoor activities and always wear shoes.

Open food also attracts bees and other insects. Keep it covered if possible and when bees are around, avoid swift movements. If one lands on you don't slap it since as a general rule bees won't sting unless threatened.

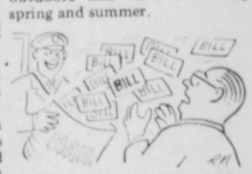

Fatal reactions are more common in adults (to Hymenoptera) than children. Fatalities seem to increase with age due to the cumulative effect the reactions have. The first sting sensitizes and subsequent encounters cause increasingly severe reactions.

On the other hand, the bite or sting of a creature such as the scorpion or brown recluse spider is more fatal to children than adults. Even a small amount of venom can have an immediate and deadly effect when victims are small. Reactions to bites do, of course, vary with individuals. Some people don't even feel chigger bites, while others develop watery lesions.

Sometimes the real danger is from the secondary infection rather than the bite itself.

Some creatures have a reputation they don't really deserve. The tarantula is feared by many for its "poisonous" bite, which is no more dangerous than a pin prick. The American tarantula isn't even a spider - it's a tailless whip scorpion.

If you are stung or bitten on an extremity by any venomous insect-like creature, you should immediately make a tourniquet and place it between the bite and the trunk of the body - as near the bite as possible. do not twist the tourniquet tight enough to cause pain or stop the flow of blood. Do not keep it so tight that the pulse below the tourniquet stops or a throbbing sensation appears above it. This lightly applied tourniquet will help slow down the spread of the venom until a doctor can be reached. Do not take pain killing drugs, as they may increase the venom's lethal power. Follow normal precautions when outdoors and have a healthy spring and summer.

"They tell us to take things as they come—but who can handle them that fast?"

Warning Issued On Will Form Ads

JEFFERSON CITY — Fred B. Hulse, general chairman of the Missouri Bar administration which is appointed by the Missouri Supreme Court to enforce the canons of legal ethics and supress the unauthorized practice of law, has issued a warning concerning will form advertisements being carried on Missouri radio stations. The advertisements offer for sale will forms, together with "simple instructions" to fill them out.

In his warning, Hulse pointed out that courts have ruled that the offering for sale of such forms with instructions as to their execution constitutes the unauthorized practice of law and is illegal.

Missouri Secretary of State, James C. Kirkpatrick, has also pointed out that the company offering the services has not qualified with his office to do business in Missouri.

Hulse explained that, while an individual may write his own will if he wants to take the chance of its being defective, no corporation or individual not licensed to practice law may advise another person on such a technical legal matter. He pointed out that since the laws vary in most of the 50 states, it would be impossible for anyone to prepare a "standard will form and instructions" which would be legal in every state. He suggested that persons who may have made use of such "will forms" should check these with their family lawyer to make sure that the wills do express their wishes and that they will stand up in court.

Hulse pointed out that one of the sad things about the use of such forms is that the defects may not be found until the person who filled in the form dies, and it is then too late to correct.

ARMED FORCES

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 4 MAY 1970 — The Officers Wives' Club (OWC) Newcomers Coffee was held recently at the Officers Open Mess.

Seven newcomers were welcomed: Mrs. Joe Neelon, Mrs. Steve Smith, Mrs. Ernie Lenart, Mrs. Calvin Smith, Mrs. Frank Douglas, Mrs. Chuck Dwyer, and Mrs. Jack Bauer.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Jesse Frye, Mrs. George Podraza, Mrs. Paul Green, Mrs. James Stanton, and Mrs. Robert Bannach.

Mrs. Harold Beamer, OWC president, presented Mrs. Stanton with a gift thanking her for a job well done as corresponding secretary.

A fashion show was presented from the Thrift Shop. The models were members of the OWC and some of their children. Mrs. Lannie Peevy played background music on the piano, while Mrs. Ronald McPherson narrated. Mrs. McPherson urged everyone to visit the shop.

Mrs. Beamer announced that the Family Services Orientation course will be held May 13 from 8:45 - 11 a.m. It will be immediately followed by a fashion show and free luncheon. The luncheon is set for noon.

Free nursery care will be available throughout the orientation course.

A bicycle group has been formed and will meet five days a week from 10- 11 a.m. The group will cycle around the base housing area. Interested persons should contact Mrs. Bannach.

In other business, Mrs. Edwin Stigall introduced the candidates for offices to be voted on at the May 12 luncheon. The polls will be open from 11:30 a.m. until 12:45 p.m. A luncheon will follow at 1:00 p.m.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 4 MAY 1970 -- It is often said that "A woman's hair is her crowning glory." Angey Nicholson from Oakland, Calif., who is director of Military Beauty Consultants, strives to prove that statement.

Thirty- one members of the Noncommissioned Officers Wives' Club (NCOWC) and their four guests, Mmes. Guy Arnold, William Hagans, Poy L. Truknett and James F. Wallace, Sr., gathered recently at the NCO Open Mess for their regular Hi-Bye Meeting. Miss Nicholson presented a film and discussion during the meeting on hair coloring, hair care and individual hair problems.

The film depicted how much a woman can change her appearance and outlook by a change of hair coloring and make- up. It showed how each hair color should have its own special type of make- up.

After the film, Miss Nicholson gave a very informative talk on how to care for the hair. She said that any woman can be whatever she pleased with an inexpensive, easy, at home "do-it- yourself" kit. She also stated that "With the progress made today in the chemicals for today's hair cosmetics, a woman need never have grey hair... not even grandmothers. The change of hair coloring often has a good psychological effect on the individual making the grey-haired turned brunette or red head feel and look younger and even act younger," said the beautician, "which is what all women want."

Following the discussion, Miss Nicholson answered the many questions to the satisfaction of the women.

While refreshment of cakes, chips and dips, coffee and iced tea were being served, Miss Nicholson and her assistant, Mrs. Everett W. Krantz, Jr., presented each of the ladies with a "goodie bag" as a momento of the program. The parcels contained a dry shampoo, a hair conditioner and a hair body builder.

Sensing The News

THE IGNOBLE EXPERIMENT

Even as Prohibition was termed the "noble experiment" -- while it lasted, we have now reached the point in our experience when forced integration may be termed the "ignoble experiment." Almost 16 years after the U. S. Supreme Court rulings in the school cases, it is clear that the judicial policies set by the court are not working and actually are damaging to all Americans regardless of race, creed or color.

The social theorists who developed the notion of compulsory association did not take account of what is practical in human affairs. The fact is that, today black Americans increasingly insist on freedom to associate with their own group.

The nation should have known from the beginning that forced association would not work and would prove unacceptable to both major racial groups in the country. The Presidents of this country, from Thomas Jefferson to Harry Truman, especially including Abraham Lincoln, have made strong statements to this effect over the years.

The net result of the crusade for forced association has been to worsen race relations in many areas, to disrupt or breakdown the educational process, and to slowdown the progress of the people most in need of it. In the 1960s, the federal government demonstrated its power to compel the states to alter their laws and educational systems. But the government failed miserably at constructive efforts involving education. Had forced association not been placed ahead of educational values, real learning would have been advanced at a rapid rate among people with a low level of educational attainment.

The error of forced association was not recognized while court orders requiring it were confined to the Southern State. But once the problem of forced association became national in scope, then the public began to recognize the folly of court decisions requiring racial balancing and similar measures.

So now, at long last, the nation begins to take a new look at the whole question of association in a free country. In the North and the West, for example, there is a fresh awareness of the importance of preserving or restoring the neighborhood school and the error of transporting students hither and yon in order that classrooms have a precise recial composition. Before long, the U. S. Supreme Court may be compelled to reexamine its central thesis on the psychological effects of racial separation in education, if for no other reason than that many black Amercians want their children to attend schools in their home neighborhood where surroundings are familiar and fellow students have the same background.

Indeed it seems clear that if the nation seriously wants to improve educational opportunity and upgrade unskilled people for better employment it will have to dispense with the concepts of compulsion that only irritate and upset people and don't add to their real knowledge or capabilities.

Forced association, of course, is derived from the general socialistic philosophy of complusion – the idea that people must be made to do what social theorists think is good for them. The idea of government selecting a person's associates, of course, is ridiculous and should have been so regarded years ago. Had compulsion been seen as the greatest social evil, the country would have been spared the internal agonies and high costs that have resulted from the 1954 Supreme Court decisions.

Progress in a republic should come through voluntary association and through partnership. Progress cannot come from edicts regarding association. Certainly, public education has not been improved by the fact that the Supreme Court has acted as the ultimate school board superintendent for the nation.

Both white and black Americans want a happier era than the country has had in the last 15 years. They want a calmer atmosphere in the public schools and better instruction in the elementals that lead to higher education and saleable skills. They want peaceful neighborhoods. And they want the federal government to stop writing the rules for association and other personal aspects of community life.

Hopefully, the country will acknowledge the failure of the "ignoble experiment" and move on to more sensible and constructive ways of helping everybody get ahead in an enterprise society.

Stamps In The News

It seems that wherever there are boys there are Boy Scouts. The international organization has been a boon to youngsters all over the world, and postage stamps honoring the various Boy Scout groups have been issued by scores of countries.

The latest such issue comes from Barbados which is paying tribute to its Boys Scouts Association, first founded in 1912 and formally recognized as a local association in 1918. Today this small island proudly boasts 1400 uniformed members.

The 5 cents value shows the National Scout Badge. The 25 cents depicts Sea Scouts. The 35 cents illustrates a camp fire scene. The 50 cents features the National Scout Headquarters.

The United States soon will issue a stamp honoring Edgar Lee Masters which will be the first of a series dedicated to American poets. The date, place of issuance and design will be reported in this column as soon as the information becomes available.

Masters, a midwestern poet is best known for "Spoon River Anthology," published in 1915. The Anthology is comprised of some 200 epitaphs of men and women, who lie buried on the hill of mythical Spoon River.

Masters' fame is secure with the "Anthology" but he also published many books, including biographies of Lincoln, Vachel Lindsay, Mark Twain and Walt Whitman.

In announcing this new stamp, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount said: "President Nixon has shown considerable interest in our stamp program, and I agree with him that there is a place on our stamps for those quiet men and women of genius whose artistic endeavors have preserved our heritage and contributed to our cultural stimulation."

West Berlin has issued a new stamp honoring one of its most eminent writers, Theodor Fontane, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The 20 pfennig stamp commemorates the 150th anniversary of his birth. Appearing as the main design of the new stamp is a portrait of Fontane in multicolor. It is interesting to note that Fontane's works were not only appreciated in Germany but also in the U.S., Great Britain, France, U.S.S.R., and Japan.

The stamp is available at your local dealer or in stamp departments of fine stores throughout the country.

H.E. Harris & Co. has announced the release of the 1970 edition of its "Collector's Catalog." This catalog includes up-to-date prices on U.S. stamps, plus many new special listings. Early issues — 1847 through 1935 — are priced as singles in used and unused conditions. Subsequent issues are priced mainly in sets and groups. Selected Canada and United Nations sets are included for the first time. Another feature is a selective listing of British Colonies commemoratives.

Copies are available for just 10 cents directly from H.E. Harris & Co., Dept. SC-2, Boston, Mass. 02117.

The most valuable stamp in the world — The British Guiana one cent black on magenta — will be sold at auction on March 24th in New York City. It was originally issued in 1856. To give an indication of the estimated worth of this rarity, when it was last displayed publicly at an exhibition in London in 1965.

A FLORIDA HOME, this three bedroom, two bathroom structure has a waterfront design, and is meant for indoor-outdoor living: all major rooms face the water, and the living room kitchen and master bedroom have direct access to the screened porch.

Widely projecting eaves protect the 8-inch masonry block-stucco covered outer walls. Inside, partitions are of 6 inch wood stud and plaster, and the floor is a concrete slab, covered with terrazo, cork or carpet. The pitched roof is topped with tar and gravel. Plan HA630R, with 1,080 square feet of living space, was designed by architect Jan Reiner, 1000 52 St. No., St. Petersburg, Fla., 33710.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY — Sp4 Larry Erickson, a 1st Infantry Division soldier from Glenwood, Minn., celebrates his 22d birthday in the jungle 30 miles north of Saigon. Friends in Specialist Erickson's unit, D Company, 2d Battalion, 18th Infantry, fashioned the birthday cake from a C-ration pound cake and waterproof matches. (U.S. Army Photo by Sp4 Anthony Hallas)

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE LATELY FOR THE LOVE OF YOUR LIFE?

We have some suggestions.

For your lungs, stop smoking cigarettes. For your skin, avoid excessive sun. For your mouth, get regular dental checkups. For colon-rectum, if you're over 40, get an annual procto. If you're a woman, examine your breasts once a month. And have a Pap test regularly.

And if you're smart, get a complete health checkup once a year. Even if you never felt better in your life.

It's up to you, too.

HIGH WATER — Pfc Lindy Backman, a machinegunner with the 5th Battalion, 60th Infantry, 3d Brigade, 9th Infantry Division, wades across one of the numerous streams in the Mekong Delta, Republic of Vietnam. Private Backman is from Petaluma, Calif.

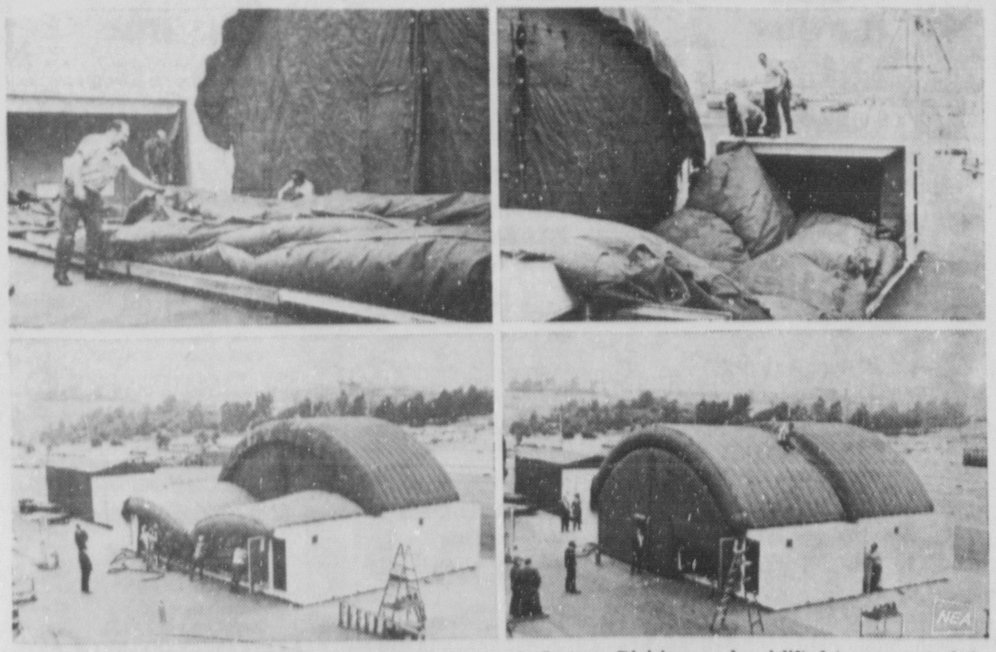

FATHERLY ADVICE from one serviceman to another. Air Force M. Sgt. Earl W. Perdue gives instruction on the chest parachute to his son, Navy Seaman Marvin L. Perdue. Sgt. Perdue, a radar operator with the Aerospace Defense Command, and his son, a radioman, flew on patrol off the California coast.

UNFLINCHING, so as not to disturb the object on her head, this woman can't help grimacing as she gets vaccinated. As a result of the Agency for International Development's three-year effort, 100 million Africans have been inoculated against smallpox and 15 million against measles. Cases of smallpox have dropped from 11,000 in 1967 to 485 in the first nine months of 1969.

KEEPING THEIR POWDER DRY, Marines hold rifles high while crossing the Vu Gia River near Da Nang, South Vietnam. The leathernecks were pursuing an enemy force estimated at 400 strong.

MODULAR SHELTERS provided by the Air Force Electronic Systems Division can be airlifted to any part of the world and moved quickly within an area of operations by helicopter, cargo aircraft or truck. Bolduc House Historic Landmark

WASHINGTON, D.C. — United States Rep. Bill D. Burlison of Missouri's 10th District today announced that Louis Bolduc House, Ste. Genevieve, Mo., had been selected by Secretary of Interior, Walter Hickel, on recommendation of the advisory board on National Parks, Historic Sites, Buildings, and Monuments, as a National Historic Landmark.

Burlison stated that this automatically places the property on the National Register of Historic Places giving the property safeguards against damage by Federal undertakings and fulfills one qualification for participation in a grant- in - aid program to assist in its preservation.

The Bolduc House (ca. 1785) is a splendid and little- altered example of a French Colonial House of poteaux- sur- sole (posts on the sill, with stone foundation) construction, (clay and grass) wall filling. After some years of neglect, the house was restored to its 18th- century appearance in 1956- 1957.

The restored Bolduc House is a large one- story rectangular frame building measuring 48 by 82 feet. It consists of two large rooms, each 26 by 27 feet, separated by a central hall; and these are completely surrounded by a wide galerie or veranda, the northwestern corner of which was walled in bout 1820, to serve as a kitchen. The main block of the house is covered with a high, hipped roof, and spreading around it on all four sides is a low- pitched roof covering the galerie, the latter roof being supported by thin wooden posts. The main roof is supported by a series of heavy hewn, Norman oak trusses. The walls of the house are constructed of oak timbers set upright on a sill resting on a stone foundation. The great hewn wall posts are set about six inches apart and the interstices are filled with a nogging of clay and straw. The walls are also whitewashed and plastered. The ceilings are beamed so that the loft could be used for the storage of heavy items such as corn and lead. It is in good condition and is open to visitors as a historic house exhibit.

utility revenue 3-18 mi

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission Friday told Missouri Natural Gas Co. its application should call for a revenue boost of between $516,000 and $587,000 a year.

The company had asked for $735,000 in rate hikes in the communities it serves in the counties of Butler, Iron, Jefferson, Madison, St. Francois and Ste. Genevieve.

The commission's action was not a final decision. Instead it was an order that the company not include in its gas distribution operations the cost of merchandising gas appliances.

The English language is rich in words that derive from the languages of other countries, says The World Almanac. The British introduced a number of words from India into English. Among the more common are "shampoo," which comes from the Hindustani word "champo," "bungalow," which comes from the Hindi "bangla" and "dungarees," which comes from the Hindi "dungri."

A LEVEE two feet high was built to hold the high water of the Mississippi River back at Mikco Grain Co. elevator located ten miles north of Charleston. The water covered the bases of the winches used to move the barges, before coming to a crest last Wednesday.

Rising Flood Waters Threaten Crops

CHARLESTON — The rising waters of the Mississippi had farmers and grain elevator owners out in force last week in an attempt to prevent the loss of wheat crops along the river, north of Charleston.

A two foot levee was added to those built last year, before the river crested at 36 foot on Wednesday. This depth is about 20 foot above normal.

Some wheat was lost in the area of Price's Landing and Buffalo Island, but the loss is not as great as last years

Conservation Body Says Scenic River Bill Must Represent All

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) – The Missouri Conservation Commission declares that any plan for the preservation of the state's scenic rivers must carefully balance the interests of the general public and the landowners involved.

The commission, in a formal statement of policy, conceded that it probably is the proper agency to administer any scenic rivers program.

The commission's statement was issued two days after the Scenic Rivers Affiliation announced it was withdrawing its initiative petitions calling for enactment of a scenic rivers law. The proposed law would have zoned land on either side of specific stream stretches without payment to the landowner.

Because of the withdrawal, the commission said, it now feels free to discuss the problem. In earlier statements it was generally noncommittal because its success as the state agency governing fish and wildlife made it dependent on the cooperation and good will of both landowners and sportsmen.

"No proposal (for the preservation of scenic rivers) should overlook the fact that the Conservation Commission must represent all interests in the state, both rural and urban," the policy statement said.

"Therefore, the commission feels that any proposal must be a balance between the interests of the general public and those landowners involved. All aspects must be considered or a scenic rivers system cannot be effective."

The commission proposed what it called "five fundamental considerations" that must be a part of any proposal that would ultimately be administered by the commission:

"1. It should be created by a constitutional amendment so no question is likely to be raised as to the right of the commission to administer the system.

"2. It should have dedicated monies to fund the system as an integral part of the constitutional amendment, so that there is assurance that these 'earmarked' funds will be available for the intended purpose.

"3. The source of revenue and means of funding should be specified in the constitutional provisions.

"4. Minimum land rights sought should be scenic easement, but broader rights may be desireable in the public interest. Any rights acquired should be purchased — from a willing seller.

"5. Purchase of rights should be on a negotiated basis in an initial period, the landowner to receive fair compensation for any rights offered."

Medallions Placed on Sale

Donald R. Bohannon, president of the First National Bank of Sikeston, along with other participating banks and savings and loan associations in Missouri, are distributing the official Missouri Sesquicentennia Commemorative Medallions. The financial institutions, in this manner, are joining the efforts of the Missouri Sesquicentennial Commission to support the celebration of Missouri's 150th year.

The dollar-size medallions have been issued in two metals, .999 fine silver and bronze. Each silver medallion is serially numbered on the edge up to 15,000, the limit of issue. They will sell for $10 each. The bronze medallions are priced at $1 each.

Proceeds from the sales of the medallions will be used to support the Missouri Sesquicentennial Commissions various activities in celebration of the states' 150th birthday. The participating banks and savings and loan associations are donating their time and facilities and performing this public service on a completely non-profit basis. They will be the sole distributors of the medallions.

Both bronze and silver medallions are expected to become collector's items. They are the same size and design. On the obverse side of the medal, the words "Missouri Sesquicentennial 1820-1970" surround the center portion of Missouri's State Seal. The reverse side of the coin has an outline of the state in the background. In the foreground, march historic figures starting with Lewis & Clark who are followed by Missouri's pioneer settlers, a pony express rider, a scholar, Mark Twain, Charles Linburgh and today's space age scientists. Each is representative of the kind of people who made Missouri the great state it is today.

The medallion was designed and sculpted by Robert Wyman, whose father, Adolph, executed the figures that stand on the pediment of the Missouri State Capitol Building at Jefferson City. The medallions were struck by Medallic Art Compnay, New York.

Miser Gets Splendid Send Off

THE CASE OF THE BIG BLAST-OFF
By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Fred was a miser who lived miser-ably all of his life. He worked hard and never spent a cent. The result? When he died, he left an estate of $25,000. When Herbie was appointed as administrator and discovered all the bucks in the estate, he decided to send his pal Freddy off in regal style. But, when he later submitted the funeral bill in court for approval, in the amount of $5,000, one of Fred's brothers voiced loud objection to its payment.

"That bill's an outrage," he protested. "It's too high. If Fred ever saw it, he'd rise from the dead. He was such a penny pincher. He'd never have died if he knew it would cost that much."

"It was Freddy's money" was Herbie's answer, "and I figured it would be the last time he'd ever have a chance to enjoy it. Consequently, giving him a big blast-off was absolutely proper, and the bill should be allowed!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you O.K. the big bill for blast-off?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the expense of a funeral must be reasonable and in keeping with the manner in which the deceased person lived. If this life, and the amount of his estate, the cost of the funeral was too high and could not be allowed. (Based upon a 1947 California District Court of Appeals Division).

The Prayer from The Upper Room

So shall my word be that goes forth from my mouth; it shall not return to me empty, but it shall accomplish that which I purpose, and prosper in the thing for which I sent it. (Isaiah 55:11, RSV)

PRAYER: Dear Father God, we pray that we may not be silent for lack of words, nor yet mouth platitudes. Help us, Lord, to trust You for what we must say, and then speak confidently in the knowledge that the words are not our words but Yours. This we pray in the name of Jesus. Amen.

Industrial Education Awards

The 1970 Missouri Industrial Education Awards Program will be conducted Saturday at the University of Missouri-Columbia with 140 entries from around the state competing for top awards and scholarships, according to Robert A. Robison, director of industrial education in the State Department of Education.

To be eligible to enter their projects in the state competition, entrants must be enrolled in junior or senior high school industrial arts and/or vocaional - technical education programs in Missouri schools. The projects entered in the finals at the University advanced from local and district competition.

Earlier this year, district programs were conducted at Maryville, Kirksville, Kansas City, Warrensburg, St. Louis, Cape Girardeau, Springfield, and in St. Louis County.

The technical areas in which students compete are drafting, electricity - electronics, general shop, metalwork, graphic arts, industrial crafts (ceramics, leather, plastics, etc.) woodwrok and power mechanics.

Today In U.S. History

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, May 13, the 133rd day of 1970. There are 232 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1607, Jamestown, Va., was founded. It was the first permanent English settlement in America.

On this date:

In 1809, Napoleon Bonaparte captured Vienna.

In 1846, the U.S. Congress declared that a state of war existed between the United States and Mexico.

In 1865, the last engagement of the Civil War took place at Palo Pinto, Tex.

In 1940, Queen Wilhelmina and Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands fled to London ahead of Nazi invaders.

Also in 1940, Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill told his people: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

In 1958, Vice President Richard M. Nixon was attacked by mobs in Caracas, Venezuela. He escaped injury although his limousine was battered by rocks the size of melons.

Ten years ago—Voters in the Belgian Congo were holding their first election in preparation for independence.

Five years ago—India's Prime Minister Lal Bahandur Shastri was on a visit to Moscow.

One year ago— President Nixon called on Congress to reorganize the military draft by switching to a lottery system.

In the tiny Asian country of Brunei, when a man is put in jail his family is entitled to financial assistance from the government.

Salary Increase Thwarted In New Madrid County

NEW MADRID — Teachers in the New Madrid R-I School District have apparently been thwartedin their attempt to have a new salary schedule adopted by the district board of education.

Attorney Kenneth Wangelin, who represents the New Madrid Enlarged School District Community Teachers Association, told The Missourian Monday that despite funds being available, the R-I administration has refused the association's request for a new schedule and has thus far avoided meeting with the organization to discuss any new salary arrangements.

Max Timmons, assistant superintendent for the district, said the requested salary schedule was refused because the district "doesn't have the resources." He added, "if the Legislature appropriates more money, we'll be glad to negotiate new contracts."

The teachers are asking that an index salary system be adopted, providing for a $100 increase in base pay plus increases across the board for time and educational qualifications. Timmons said the teachers received a raise for the coming year consisting of a $200 increase in base pay and an additional $100 increment. He said that teacher salaries now range from $6,000 to $6,900.

Wangelin said the index system requested by the teachers would cost an estimated $50,000 more than the increase awarded by the administration.

Mr. Wangelin said money that could be make available for teachers' salaries is being held for other uses. The administration replied money for salary increases is not available and there is no need to negotiate new salaries unless funds are made available by the state.

Timmons said that contracts for the coming school year have been signed by the teachers and returned, but explained that this will not rule out any new negotiation if funds become available.

Apparently all actions toward new salaries have come to a standstill and will remain so until new funds are obtained by the district. Mr. Wangelin said that the teachers apparently do not plan to strike, and that he "strongly urged them not to strike."

GETS MOTORCYCLE

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Dr. Leonard Wilson, who has just retired as Anglican Bishop of Birmingham, was presented with a light motorcycle, helmet and goggles by the city's Double Zero motorcycling club. "The bike will be useful when I'm sent out to do the shopping," the 71-year-old Bishop told them.

PATRIOTISM
(Written July 4, 1914)

We love to tell the story
Of the 4th in all its glory,
How the patriotic men of old
With swords and clubs and guns so bold
Gathered beneath the old oak tree
And drew up the hopes that declared us free.
Yes, we were all made free indeed
And Washington bid us, then, God speed
For now we lived in the land of the free,
And could ring the "Bell of Liberty".
Ring! ring that bell! men of today,
Lift high the flag and shout and say -
Praise God for all his goodness to us,
Our banner shall ne'er trail in the dust.
So let's keep waving our flag "Old Glory"
And tell to all the dear old story.

GOD'S LOVE

Oh how the Lord loves us, I say -
As I see the rolling waves
Of the vast wide sea, the winter
Snow so soft and white,
The crystal clear of hanging ice.

Then comes the spring and soft winds
Blow and living things begin to grow.
The buds burst forth in colors gay,
To chase the winter's gloom away.

The flashing wings of birds,
Flying by the gorgeous colors of
Butterfly's, the green grass below,
The tall trees above, there's Something about us the good Lord must love.

-Mrs. W. C. Winstead,

A PROTEST SONG

God bless you Mister President
We love you more than you can know.
Pray with us Mister President
Demonstrators will come and go.
They don't know.

Do you miss America
like I miss America?
Mister President,
America needs you more than they know.

Don't be swayed Mister President
A handful does not speak for all.
Do what's right Mister President
And justice will follow your call.
So stand tall.

We have faith Mister President
And know you're bringing peace for Man.
We trust you Mister President
We know it's time to take a stand
For this land.

Do you miss America
like I miss America?
Mister President,
America needs you more than they know.

You're not alone, Mster Nixon
The majority stands by you.
We understand Mister Nixon
You must do what you have to do.
God bless you.
Yes, God bless you.

University Curator Supports Nixon

COLUMBIA (AP) — The president of the University of Missouri curators said Friday he supported President Nixon's position on Cambodia, American campuses and lawlessness.

Judge Wm. H. Billings of Kennett made that statement in a news conference following a brief, routine monthly board meeting.

While he spoke, about 20 students sat in a nearby hallway shouting "strike, strike."

At times the shouts drowned out the voices of speakers in the news conference. But Dr. John C.Weaver, university president, said he did not disregard the demonstration as disruptive.

"This meeting may have been uncomfortable, but it hasn't been disruptive," Weaver said. "I feel we can distinguish between the protection of dissent and the prevention of disruption."

"But I cannot see the role of the university here," Weaver added. "We didn't kill anybody at Kent State and we didn't go into Cambodia." The student demonstrators dispersed quickly after the curators left the building.

Billings said he had sent a telegram of support to President Nixon, expressing his views as a curator, a circuit court judge, and the father of a 20-year-old Marine in Vietnam.

"We all agree it was a tragedy," Billings said of the Kent deaths. "But when dissent passes orderly procedures and gets into violence, that leads to more violence and people are going to get hurt."

Asked what action the university might take on attempted fire bombings earlier this week in Columbia, Billings said any student who broke the law should not expect immunity from the law.

The board, in its meeting, denied the appeals of three students who had been expelled or suspended for their part in a sitin in February protesting restrictions on intervisitation.

The students were Raymond Michael Evers of Plymouth Wis., a journalism student who was expelled; Miss Patricia Vandiver, Bonne Terre, a senior in journalism, suspended until September; and Miss Barbara Allan, New Madrid, a freshman, suspended for the rest of this semester.

The curators approved the appointment of Dr. Norton E. Long, as director of the Center of Community and Metropolitan Studies at the St. Louis campus. Long currently is professor of political science at the University of Illinois.

UPDATE YOUR HEATING SYSTEM THIS SUMMER

Now that warm weather is here, you can forget about your heatingsystem — right? No, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau says. This is the time to have it cleaned and, if necessary, repaired, while its performance last winter is still fresh in your mind. If the system is an old one, it will pay you to have a new one installed. The modern hydronic (hot water) system is clean, quiet, efficient and draft-free.

BEAUTIFUL, AMBITIOUS, AND CLAIRVOYANT THE TURQUOISE by Anya Seton
(Avon/ No. N 266/95 cents/ 320 pp.)

You are born to great vision, Little One; for you they have made thin the curtain that hides the real .... But there is danger. You must listen to the voice of the Spirit, or your body will betray you. Be certain that the path you choose is the right one.

These words, uttered by an Indian shaman, as he bestows upon her a sacred turquoise, advise the heroine of Anya Seton's novel, THE TURQOISE, of her uncanny gift of "second sight."

With her ability to see the underlying causes of human situations, such as illness, and to look into the future, young Santa Fe Cameron sets out on the path destiny has marked for her. She pushes on from the back alleys of Santa Fe to the pinnacle of New York society, always tormented by the warning of her inner vision.

Captured Red Documents Reveal Aims in Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — The Communist high command for Vietnam will attempt to counter the continuing allied destruction of its long-established border sanctuaries by organizing a "war of liberation" in Cambodia similar to the conflicts that have torn apart South Vietnam and Laos for 10 years.

That is the instruction being passed down from the Hanoi government. At least 10 documents captured inside Cambodia in recent days refer to this new war.

Detailed directions have been fed to field commanders and political cadre on techniques of recruitment and organization inside Cambodia. The instructions are in effect the same that built the Vietnam conflict from an insurgency problem into a fullblown war: swim like fish in the sea of population, create a people's army.

Allied experts who have been studying the captured documents believe the Communist high command is aiming less to take over Cambodia than to insure the continued use of that country to fight the Vietnam war.

While Cambodia was neutral under Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Communist-led forces kept a generally low profile along the border sanctuaries and did not meddle in internal Cambodia politics. Sihanouk's overthrow in March and the resultant Saigon army thrusts into the sanctuaries seriously alarmed the Communist high command, the captured documents show.

One dated in late March said, "It can be assumed that a plan to drive our troops from the border areas has been devised by the Cambodian government and the U.S. and Vietnamese army in South Vietnam."

The answer was to instruct Communist leaders in Cambodia to organize a new war.

A notebook belonging to a member of a Unit 3 was captured the first day American troops crossed into Cambodia. An April 18 entry said the owner was assigned to activate guerrilla elements and "to motivate the Cambodians in may area of responsibility to join the liberation front of Cambodia."

Another diary entry said the mission of the front was to overthrow the Lon Nol government in Phnom Penh and fight the Americans.

Another document passed down orders to "consolidate liberated areas and develop a liberation army."

CHICKEN TETERZINNI

Boil a nice chicken till done, then remove meat from bones & dice.

Dice ½ cup celery & 1 onion. Saute in a stick of butter till soft and brown. Add 1 can of cream of mushroom soup and 1 can (not cup) of milk. Add salt, pepper, paprika and curry powder to suit your own taste.

Boil 12 oz. of bow tie noodles. Add chicken to noodles and pour sauce over all and mix. Pour into cassarole, cover top with grated cheese. Bake 300 degrees for 45 min.

RICE-BROCCOLI CASSAROLE

Cook and drain 2 pkgs. frozen, chopped broccoli.

Brown 1 small, diced onion in 2 TBS. butter. Add broccoli, ¾ cup raw rice, 1 can Cream of Chicken soup, ½ cup milk, and ½ tsp. oregano.

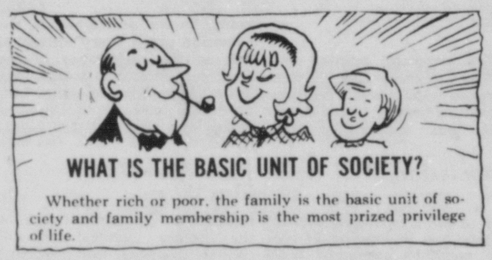

Pour into bakingdish and top with American cheese grated. Bake in greased, covere. cassarole at 350 degrees for 50 min. to 1 hour. Serves 8.

FRIED BREAD PUFFS

Sift 2 cups flour with 1 tsp. salt. Add ¼ cup melted butter and mix with fork till crumbly. Stir in enough water to make a soft dough (about 6 TBS.) Turn out on a lightly floured surface and knead 5 min. or till dough is shiny. Roll out very thin, you can almost see through it. Cut into 5- inch rounds. Put salad oil or shortening in a pan until at least 2 inches deep and 370 degrees F. Drop rounds in a few at a time and fry until they puff and are golden brown- 2-3 minutes. Turn and fry on other side. Drain on paper towels. Serve hot, makes about 16.

1000 ISLAND DRESSING

Serve on crisp Iceberg lettuce. Mix together:
1 cup Miracle Whip
1 TBS. chopped green pepper
¼ tsp. paprika
1 hard boiled egg, chopped
2 TBS chopped onion
1/3 cup chili sauce

New Program Lets Farmers Invest in Cooperative Bonds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farm Credit Administration has announced a new securities program aimed at giving farmers an opportunity to invest in their own credit cooperatives such as federal land bank and production credit associations.

E. A. Jaenke, FCA governor, said the new "farm credit investment bonds" will be sold in multiples of $1,000 to members and employes of the system's banks and associations.

Jaenke said the bond sales will not compete or dilute the markets for the system's traditional sales of securities.

The Farm Credit System—wholly owned by farmer stockholders—is made up of 37 cooperative banks and 1,100 local lending associations which serve about one million farmers and 3,000 co-ops. Last year these groups lent nearly $11 billion to members.

The new bonds will be issued each month. They will carry a five-year maturity but can be redeemed at any time without loss of principal, though interest return will be reduced on redemptions within one year of sale, the announcement said.

Governor Proclaims Beef Month

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes proclaimed May the Beef Month of Missouri. In his proclamation he focused attention to the state's gigantic beef industry which ranks third in prominence in the nation.

The governor pointed out that as a major agricultural enterprise the beef industry contributes heavily to the state's social and economical well being. In his proclamation, the governor urged every citizen to join in the observance of the state Beef Month so that all may better appreciate Missouri beef products, improve the level of health and financial well being.

State Highway Commission Will Open Bids May 22

The Missouri State Highway Commission announced today that it will open sealed bids at 10 a.m. on Friday, May 22, for an estimated $34,000,000 in state highway construction and improvements.

The work covers about 59 miles of the state's highways in 16 counties and the cities of Mexico, Columbia and Kansas City.

Interstate system projects total 21.6 miles in length; Primary system work will extend over 10.2 miles; Urban system improvements will cover 4.3 miles; and Supplementary (farm to market) system work will cover 22.8 miles.

Interstate system projects include:

HOLT: Interstate Route 29 – 9.1 miles grading, culverts, signing and laying two 24-foot wide portland cement concrete pavements from U. S. Route 59, north of Oregon, southeast to Andrew county.

CLAY-JACKSON: Interstate Route 435 – superstructure, deck, railing, lighting and interlayer protective coat with asphalt wearing surface of the Missouri River bridge in Kansas City. The project totals 0.7 mile in length.

PERRY: Interstate Route 55 – 11 miles grading, culverts, bridging, signing, water line installation and laying two 24-foot wide portland cement concrete pavements from the Ste. Genevieve county line southeast to south of Route 51. Seven bridges are included.

MISSISSIPPI: Interstate Route 57 – grading, culverts and erosion control work along a 0.9-mile stretch from Big Lake Bayou drainage ditch northeast to the Mississippi River.

Primary system work includes:

CASS: U.S. Route 71 – construction of new signs and modification of existing signs along a 4.9-mile stretch from 3½ miles south of Peculiar to south of Route 7.

CAMDEN: Route 5 – cleaning and painting the Hurricane Deck bridge over the Lake of the Ozarks. Project totals 0.4 mile in length.

HOWARD: Route 5 – sidewalk addition to the existing bridge over Bear Creek at Glasgow.

ST. LOUIS: Route 30 – 1.7 miles grading, culverts, signing, bridging and laying one 24-foot wide concrete pavement from the Meramec River southwest to the Jefferson County line. Four bridges are included.

DALLAS: Route 64 – 0.8 mile grading, culverts and bituminous mat surfacing from Route 73, east.

DALLAS: U.S. Route 65 – 0.4 mile grading, culverts some bituminous mat and part asphaltic concrete surfacing at the intersection with Route N.

BOLLINGER-STODDARD: Route 91 – 2 miles grading, culverts, bridging and bituminous mat surfacing from the Castor River diversion channel southeast into Stoddard county.

Urban system improvements are:

AUDRAIN: Route J – 4.3 miles grading, culverts, bridging and asphaltic concrete surfacing in Mexico from Route KK to U.S. Route 54. Two bridges are included.

BOONE: Route 740 – grading, widening and bituminous paving in Columbia with the intersections of Worley Street and Route TT.

Essay Winner

ORAN — Larry George, a Senior, was awarded second place in an area essay contest, "Why You've Got A lot to Live," sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Company.

In addition to a $25 bond, Larry received a $75 savings bond in the area competition. Approximately 40 high schools were involved in the area contest, which was judged at Three Rivers Junior College in Poplar Bluff.

Others receiving class awards from Oran were Margaret Todt, Mary Seyer, and Robert Hency.

The presentations were made to the students and judges, Mrs. Nancy Tenkhoff and Mrs. Jane Wrather, by Ferrell Miller, manager of the Pepsi-Cola Plant in Sikeston.

Armed Forces

FORT WORTH, Tex. – Technical Sergeant Wayne E. McKinnie, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. R. McKinnie, R. R. 1, Bertrand, Mo., is a jet engine technician with the first Strategic Air Command (SAC) unit to receive the new FB-111A strategic bomber.

The 340th Bomb Group, Carswell AFB, Tex., provides maintenance and combat training for support personnel and the aircrews who will fly the dual seat supersonic aircraft when it becomes a part of the SAC deterrent force.

Simulated and actual flight training is accomplished at Carswell and maintenance personnel receive ground instruction on components such as the bomber's new Mark 11B Navigation / Bombing equipment and the highly sophisticated Terrain Following Radar system. The latter permits the aircraft to approach targets at a level that eludes detection by any known radar.

Sergeant McKinnie is playing a key role in the Air Force's program of adding the versatile bomber to its inventory.

Sergeant McKinnie has completed a year of duty in Vietnam.

He is a 1951 graduate of Charleston (Mo.) High School. His wife, Judith, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Blaylock, 107 E. Ada St., Charleston.

Supporters Hard to Find For Shriver

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Sargent Shriver, former U.S. ambassador to France, director of the Peace Corps and a general in the war on poverty, is finding Maryland politics a tough nut to crack.

He has struck few responsive chords after a month of looking for encouragement to run for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"I still think he's going to run, but frankly the way things have been going, I wouldn't blame him if he didn't," said an obviously depressed associate.

Shriver, married to Eunice Kennedy of the Kennedy clan, has failed to come up with a single political endorsement of note.

On the other hand, liberal Democrats have come out openly and urged Shriver not to run while announcing their support for the interim governor, Marvin Mandel. Neither Mandel nor Shriver has formally announced for the nomination but Mandel has used his nearly two decades in Democratic political circles to quietly close the doors on Shriver. Mandel was the powerful speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and state party chairman when the legislature elected him to serve out the two years in the unexpired term of Spiro T. Agnew, when the latter became vice president.

The primary is Sept. 15.

Shriver has arranged private meetings with Democratic committees around the state and AFL-CIO leaders. Democratic leaders kept quiet and organized labor has said it told Shriver it was for Mandel.

"We know that Shriver would be a good person," said Charles Della, president of the 300,000-member council in Maryland and the District of Columbia.

"He's been a liberal thinking man. But, at the same time, you don't hurt your friends."

Liberal Democrats with names known throughout the state have advised Shriver not to expect their backing.

Mandel, after a private session with Shriver in his office, was his usual noncommittal self.

"I think Mr. Shriver is a very personable man, I rather enjoyed the visit," Mandel said.

"We had a very interesting discussion about the political scene in Maryland. He told me he was testing the political scene and it would be some time before he would make any decision."

Asked if he thought Shriver's candidacy would badly split the party for the general election, Mandel said, "This is a decision that Shriver will have to make, and I don't think I should try to influence him."

When he first returned to Maryland after resigning as ambassador, Shriver replied to questions about state issues that he had been "only two and a half weeks off the boat."

Later, though, he retorted to remarks about his unfamiliarity with his native state that "I've been here the past 10 years and I haven't been walking around unconsciously."

He also said that while he had had no diplomatic experience when he became ambassador to France, nor been in many foreign countries before he headed the Peace Corps, "the record shows, I think, I've done a pretty good job."

The most likely Republican candidate at this point is C. Stanley Blair, who recently resigned as a top aide to Agnew, but who has not definitely announced he will enter the race.

The City Council of Sikeston passed the 1962 recommended food service sanitaion ordinance of the Public Health Service. This ordinance replaces the old 1942 Food Ordinance which was in force up to that time in the City of Sikeston. The new updated ordinance was badly needed due to the fact that restaurant operations have changed a great deal since 1942. Increased public demand for food establishment sanitation is shown in the fact that approximately 78 million meals a day are served from the nations food and beverage establishments. The new ordinance provides the Scott Co. Health Department with a tool to assure the public of more sanitary eating conditions.

The main purpose of a food service sanitation program is, first of all, to protect the food against infection. Many disease producing organisms may enter food by improper handling or cooking. The second purpose is to insure the wholesomeness of the food. That is, that the food is in a sound condition, clean, free from adulteration, and otherwise suitable for human food. Inspection sheets which are used under the new ordinance will have approximately 118 separate items which will be checked by the Sanitarians. The establishments will continue to be graded as in the past. The Ordinance which just has been adopted by the City of Sikeston has been in full force and effect as state regulation for a number of years.

During the next few months, the Health Department Sanitarians will be visiting all food and drinking establishments within the City and providing the operators with information concerning the new ordinance. While food sanitation and the protection of the public on a day to day basis must be achieved by the food industry, the Health Department has the responsibility to see that the job is accomplished. The Health Department also appreciates any information the citizens may have of insanitary conditions in eating establishments. The Health Department wishes to commend city officials of the City of Sikeston for their progressive outlook by updating obsolete ordinances.

I thought you might be interested in this. It is from the May 6, 1970 issue of Christian Century.

I rather think Christian Century is Right. The road of 1919 does not fit the Dusseldorf Document.

The communist revolution started in 1918 - this is quick work for a 1919 document to be so efficient.

H. Ray

If your favorite literary critic is Congressman Gerald Ford (who evidently likes to drool over "avant- garde" magazines such as Evergreen Review), you know that Justice William O. Douglas has written a book titled Points of Rebellion. Many reviewers make mention of Douglas' citation of the presumably fake Hitler quotation which this column (with a little help from our friends at Twin Circle) tried to kill off April 1. Reading us would have spared those reviewers considerable embarrassment.

In that same April Fool issue we asked our Catholic - rightist Twin Circle friends why, if they were so scrupulous about not putting words into Hitler's mouth, they were so unscrupulous about including a phony ending ("through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.") in their reproduction of a "prayer" by George Washington. Twin Circle responded (April 19 issue) with a half page of equivocation, dust- kicking, obfuscation, ambiguity and evasion. What it all boiled down to was this: the T.C. editors knew they were caught with a hoked- up quotation but refused to admit it.

That leaves us in a bind, because now we have come across a third quotation of dubious authenticity. Most of the far- right press (though not T.C., to our knowledge) has been giving space to and clucking over a phony- looking battle plan for revolution. We'd like to ask the T. C. people to use some of their Schick mammon to undertake research concerning the origins of the document- but they aren't very fond of us these days. So how about you, dear readers? Have you ever seen this one tracked down to its source?

In May of 1919 at Dusseldorf, Germany, the Allied Forces obtained a copy of some of the "Communist Rules for Revolution." Nearly 51 years later, the Reds are still following them. After reading the list, stop after each item and think about the present- day situation where you live -and all around our Nation. We quote from the Red Rules:

A. Corrupt the young; get them away from religion. Get them interested in sex. Make them superficial; destroy their ruggedness.

B. Get control of all means of publicity, thereby:

(1) Get people's minds off their governments by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books and plays and other trivialities.

(2) Divide the people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance.

(3) Destroy the people's faith in their natural leaders by holding the latter up to contempt, ridicule and disgrace.

(4) Always preach true democracy, but seize power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible.

(5) By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit, produce fear of inflation with rising prices and general discontent.

(6) Incite unnecessary strikes in vital industries, encourage civil disorders and foster a lenient and soft attitude on the part of government toward such disorders.

(7) By specious argument cause the breakdown of the old moral virtues, honesty, sobriety, self- restraint, faith in the pledged word, ruggedness.

C. Cause the registration of all firearms on some pretext, with a view to confiscating them and leaving the population helpless.

That was quite a list, wasn't it? Now stop and think - how many of these rules are being carried out in this nation today?...

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I would like to reply to Mr. Johnson and those people of R-4 School District in Scott County who are opposed to the bond issue May 19.

The children in our district are in desperate need of a new grade school. The students who were attending school at Blodgett almost lost their lives in a fire because the building was old and inadequate. The students attending at Benton are in the same danger. The school at Diehlstadt has been closed and these students are split up between the three schools. The sixth grade is going in a converted building behind Kelly High School. Now I ask you, in this space age, is this any way for our children to be educated?

These children are the future of our country. Our future teachers, farmers, our future anything they want to be if they get the proper education! How can we expect to keep qualified teachers with an inadequate school plant?

Yes, we'll have to pay more taxes! At least we will know what these are going for. My husband pays a lot of taxes already, but if it is for the future of our children and grandchildren and our neighbors' children, I think we can all dig a little deeper. I'm sure many of you donate to charities for under- privileged people. Our children in R-4 District are under- privileged as far as education is concerned.

This new building will be centrally located in our district. Thus making it better for all the students rather than a few.

I wonder what Mr. Johnson's plans are for the students at Benton and Diehlstadt? Some of our tax money was used to remodel these old and inadequate grade schools and look what good this did. It just endangered lives. Just what good will a small building at Blodgett do since the whole district needs a larger one.

I would like for each person in R-4 School District in Scott County to consider the lives of our children when you vote on May 19. Please vote Yes for the bond issue.

Sincerely,
Judith Ann Birk

Dear Sirs:

We, the people, elected our President and surely we now should trust his judgments enough to stand behind his acts and deeds. Is there one amongst us who is so qualified that they could readily step into his shoes in these trying times?

Certainly we have local violences in the big cities and on the Campus! Wy have strikes by the large companies - BUT where would our Country be if our Service Men refused to do their jobs?

It wouldn't take any time until we more than likely would have foreigners on our soil instead of overseas. What a Massacre! Dear God- has given us a freedom of choice. So why can't we use it to good advantage and back the one man who is in the position to know, more than we, how to control our enemies as well as to cope with all situations.

My husband is in his 18th year in the Service of this most wonderful country. Stationed with the Navy on Operation Deep Freeze in Antartica.

And since he has been gone we have communications only by Marsgrams and Phone patches via Ham Radio. No mail nor gifts are exchanged for the 7 months that the men are frozen in. No TV nor family life is availed to these men who live where the temperature dips to a minus 84 degrees or less. Do you know what month after month of total darkness can mean to a man's nerves? And he has no thought of rebelling.

Surely it would be a lot harder on these and all men in the services if they did not have the peace of mind that their loved ones were and are safe and secure at home. And don't you agree that we are the most underpaid of all employees- both private and government?

I am proud every morning to be able to hear the Church bells ring or to be able to see our President on TV or just to see our National colors flying over the Post Office, and to know this is a free country because our leaders are endeavoring to keep it so.

I'm proud also that my husband has chosen such an honorable profession. He's a clean- upstanding and

Court Upholds Life Term Imposed for Robbery

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— A life sentence imposed on Charles Garton for his part in the $3,813 robbery of the Farley State Bank was upheld by the Missouri Supreme Court Monday.

Garton and his partner, Joe Andrews, who also was convicted in the Sept. 1, 1961 robbery, held up the bank at Baker, a St. Joseph ice truck gunpoint and escaped in a driver, won a new trial on getaway car driven by Jack Streater.

Garton appealed both his conviction in Andrew County Circuit Court and also charged, in a separate appeal, that his rights to a fair trial had been violated. But the Supreme Court said he was adequately represented by counsel and there was no doubt about his guilt.

In another case, Edwin L. Janet's nude body was found July, 15, 1963, in Castile Creek near Stewartsville.

Baker was convicted of manslaughter in Platte County Circuit Court and sentenced to 10 years in prison but the supreme court reversed that decision, holding that the state's evidence was insufficient to link Baker with the death.

In other decisions the Supreme Court:

Upheld the life sentence assessed against Carl Wayne Paxton for his part in the holdup killing of Montford Lyle, operator of Lyle's Tavern in Amazonia. The evidence showed Paxton and a friend named Hunter had been drinking in a St. Joseph tavern before they went to Amazonia June 16, 1963 for the holdup. Paxton said Hunter did the shooting while he stayed in the car but the court ruled Paxton was equally guilty.

Affirmed the Jasper County Circuit Court action in granting a divorce to Marguerite Landreth, a Webb City teacher, from Edward Landreth, a businessman, and granting her $250 monthly alimony plus $9,000 in gross alimony. Mrs. Landreth said her husband, whom she had divorced and remarried, was having an affair with another woman and had struck her on several occasions.

Held Virgil Ray Morgan was properly convicted and sentenced to 10 years in prison for his part in the armed robbery of the Holiday Inn South in Jefferson City Oct. 7, 1963. The loot divided among three men was $202.

Ordered Glen Calvin Bunton freed from a three-year sentence for arson because the state's evidence was "flimsy, insubstantial and insufficient to sustain a conviction of arson.

Bunton was convicted in Phelps County Circuit Court of burning down an old building called "The Grotto" southwest of Newburg in Phelps County.

Granted a new trial to Ruth I. Grebe, who was convicted in Boone County Circuit Court for manslaughter in the Johnson County killing of Robert Hugh Martin July 7, 1967. The high court said the state's instructions to the jury did not spell out that she intentionally aided her son, Kenneth Grebe, 13, in stabbing Martin.

Upheld the conviction and 12-year sentence of James Talbert in the killing of Boyd Snipes during a St. Louis holdup attempt Aug. 12, 1967.

Affirmed the five-year robbery conviction imposed on Leonard Gideon in Lawrence County Circuit Court for assaulting George McGaughey, 61, at his home near Reeds Spring, south of Springfield, and taking his billfold with $30 in it. The incident occurred the night of Dec. 11, 1968.

Veto Role in 2 Advisory Panels Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industry has been allowed to veto prospective members of at least two major government scientific advisory committees in the past five years, Secretary Robert H. Finch of Health, Education and Welfare has acknowledged.

Involved were vetoes over positions the surgeon general's committee on smoking and health and the surgeon general's committee on behavioral effects of television violence, Finch said.

"In each case, members of the affected industries were given a long list of potential candidates for the committee and were invited to indicate any doubts they might have concerning the scientific impartiality of any of the individuals on that list," Finch said in a letter to Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont.

"When the surgeon general selected members for service on these advisory committees, he did not select individuals to whom there were objections industry," he wrote. "The government was looking for individuals without a previous commitment to one side of the controversy or another."

Finch said the broadcasting industry objected to seven of 40 candidates for the television-violence committee. No indication was given of the number of smoking and health panelists "vetoed by cigarette manufacturers.

Antismoking forces and critics of television violence were not given similar veto powers, HEW sources said. Furthermore, Finch's April 22 letter was the first public acknowledgement of the veto practice.

"As a general rule, HEW does not provide industry with an opportunity to review nominations for membership to an advisory committee affecting that industry," Finch wrote. "The government has a right to make exceptions to the general policy when it is in the public interest."

The secretary said vetoes were provided "to protect the government from the charge of establishing a biased committee."

"It was probable in each case that the report of the advisory committee would contain substantial criticism of the industry," he said.

"In addition, since protection of the First Amendment rights of the television industry is so important, it was considered essential that the government be protected from any possible charge that it was intimidating the broadcasting industry," Finch wrote.

The smoking panel reviewed some 11,000 research reports and concluded in 1964 there was a causal link between cigarettes committee has yet to report.

Members of the 12-man television panel include Thomas Coffin, a vice president of the National Broadcasting Co., and Joseph Klapper, a special research director for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Dear Mr. Blanton,

Since it is such a long way from the Northeast to Sikeston, I would like to explain to people at home some of the things involved in the student strikes here (especially Williams College.)

Yesterday evening, the college community convened, discussed the recent events in Cambodia, Yale, and Kent State, and reached a decision to suspend classes. This decision was supported by the students, teachers, and administration, and was considered a strike against President Nixon's war policies and the growing threat of political repression at home.

Specifically, the college is gravely concerned with the illegal invasion of Cambodia. This act now only completely destroys America's image abroad, but is highly illegal in both American and international law. Even the ostensible goal of military victory has accomplished negligible returns compared to the great social costs of the operation. Most important of all, the invasion has further, if not irrevocably, polarized the country into two groups which are becoming increasingly intently bent on suppressing the dissent its actions provoke, students and other minorities feel trapped in a situation they cannot agree with and are helpless to change. Such examples of administration "justice" as the trial of the Chicago Eight exemplify to most students the degree to which the administration flouts the law to oppress dissenters. People must wonder how they can work within a system so deviously structured.

The strike is an attempt to free students and faculty for legitimate protest-- to show the nation how seriously in error its present is and to militate for political change. The strike had to be because the polarization of this country and the increasingly illegal actions of its governments have reached such an extreme that to be left with any principles, or country, at all.

Therefore, I would hope you will print this letter in the Standard, and make editorial comment on its issues, since there is such an extreme provocation of the American public. I also hope others will read this, question it, and work to change the administration's policies while such a change is still possible.

Sincerely yours,
Patrick J. Matthews

Letter to the Editor:

To the people of our town "Morehouse" in which I have spent my life as many of you have. Others have lived here long enough to know the conditions in which we have had to live. Over the past years it seems as if no one in public office has cared any way. Now that one of our hopes and dreams are about to be realized it is on the brink of being delayed again, if not for good. Now that we see progress, which by the efforts and work of our present Mayor, "Charlie Neal," are we going to let it slip away from us again? Are we going to let things start going backward? Not only the sewer program which is nearing completion. Be honest with yourselves Morehouse people don't you think our Mayor is helping us and is more interested in the welfare and progress of our town than any Mayor we have had yet? Lets don't let him quit. It must be very hard and discouraging to him to think his people don't appreciate his efforts to make a better place for us to live. Lets get behind him, push and give him the encouragement and cooperation you aldermen, bend a little to lessen the load. Between all of us I think we can come out ahead and clean up too.

Charlie was born and raised here, I'm thankful for what has been accomplished and for the hopes we have for the future of Morehouse.

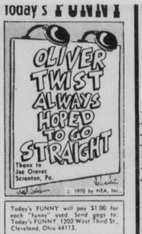

I think we should show him by our confidence in the sincere efforts he is making to make his town and ours a better place to live.

Thank you Editor for your generosity in providing space for this.

Sincerely,
Charlene Agee

This recipe for Pancake Rolls is for adventurous souls who have never made crepes and want detailed instructions. You need the crepes — thin tender French pancakes — to enclose the Pancake Filling.

The recipe for the crepes is long but once you get the knack of making them, you'll find they can be assembled quickly. Read the recipe several times before you start to make the crepes so you have a good idea of what you are supposed to do.

PANCAKE ROLLS — They can be made ahead and reheated in the oven.

PANCAKE ROLLS

3 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup unsifted flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 large eggs
2/3 cup milk
Pancake Filling, see below
1 container (1/2 pint) commercial sour cream
Grated Parmesan cheese

In a small saucepan over low heat melt the butter and keep ready, along with a heatproof pastry brush, at side of range.

Into a small mixing bowl turn the flour and salt; add eggs. Beat until smooth. Gradually beat in milk, scraping bowl and beater a few times and keeping smooth. Stir in 1 tablespoon of the melted butter (from the saucepan); don't worry if butter clots. Place bowl of batter at side of range; put a 3-tablespoon ladle in it.

Before serving, preheat oven to 400 degrees; without removing foil, place baking dish of pancakes (straight from the refrigerator) in the oven and bake until thoroughly hot — 25 to 30 minutes. Remove foil and serve at once. Pass sour cream and Parmesan as a topping.

Makes 4 servings — 2 pancakes per portion.

PANCAKE FILLING

3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed chicken broth, undiluted
1/2 cup heavy cream
2 cups diced cooked chicken or turkey
1 can (3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, thoroughly drained
1 can or jar (7 ounces) pimiento pieces, thoroughly drained

In a medium saucepan over low heat melt the butter; remove from heat; stir in the flour. Gradually stir in the chicken broth, keeping smooth. Over moderate heat, stirring constantly, cook until thickened and boiling; stir and boil for a few minutes. Remove from heat; gradually stir in cream. Stir in chicken, mushrooms and pimiento. Use as directed in Pancake Rolls recipe.

Note: Smoked turkey is also delicious in this recipe.

Bids Asked for Perry I-55 Link

JEFFERSON CITY — Bids are to be received May 22 for construction of 11 miles of construction on I-55 from the Ste. Genevieve County line scouth to Highway 51 in Perry County, the State Highway Commission announced.

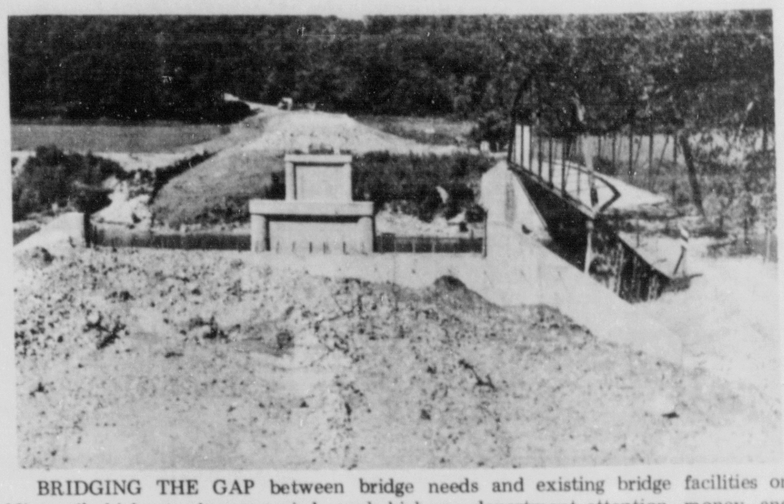

The section is the next to last remaining in the gap between Fruitland and Festus. Bids were made possible by commissioners' reports in condemnation made recently in Circuit Court in Perry County.

Subsequently commissioners' reports were made for parcels of land from Highway 51 south to the Cape County line, but this stretch was not called for bids in the announcement today. A June bid call is expected and it is thought likely this last stretch will be included then.

In addition to the work asked for in bids in Perry County, the commission also requested bids for 9/10s of a mile of grading, culverts and erosion control on Interstate 57 from Big Lake Bayou drainage ditch northeast to the Mississippi River in Mississippi County.

On the primary system, bids are requested for two miles of grading, bridging and bituminous mat surface on Route 91 from the Castor River Diversion Channel southeast into Stoddard County.

The total bid call for interstate, primary system and urban work over the state amounts to an estimated $34 million. Included are 21.6 miles of interstate, 10.2 miles of primary roads, 4.3 miles of urban work and 22.8 miles on supplementary routes.

BRIDGING THE GAP between bridge needs and existing bridge facilities on Missouri's highways has occupied much highway department attention, money, and time during the past six years. About 300 inadequate bridges on the state highway system have been replaced. The new and the old, typical of the results of the bridge replacement program, are shown side by side in this highway department picture of route M's crossing of the James River in Stone County, northeast of Jamesville.

Missouri Joins 16 Other States in Environment Council

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri is joining 16 other states and two territories in establishing the Southern Regional Environmental Conservation Council to study environmental problems.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said in announcing the plan the council is expected to consider such proposals as solving environmental problems common to more than one state through multi-state action.

The council will make its recommendations to the Southern Governors' Conference in September.

Joining with Missouri are Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Blue Collar Workers Ring City Hall Again

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 2,000 blue collar workers returned Monday to the scene of a violent confrontation with antiwar students and marched around City Hall shouting USA all the way!"

They also shouted "Lindsay must go!" and handed out leaflets demanding the resignation of, Sid Davidoff, an aide to Mayor John V. Lindsay who was involved in the bloody melee on Friday.

During Friday's confrontation, a number of students at nearby Pace College were beaten by construction workers who marched from the Wall Street area to City Hall in a demonstration against peace rallies.

Some of the construction workers invaded a Pace College building to grab students and beat them up. Lindsay has demanded a full investigation of reports that some policemen stood by during the melee and made no effort to stop the beatings.

Monday's demonstrators, including a contingent of longshoremen and many "hard hats" from downtown construction projects, carried scores of American flags.

Their ire was aroused Friday by the flying of the flag at half staff in tribute to four students killed during a confrontation with National Guardsmen at Kent State University in Ohio, and their rampage led to the moving of the flag up the staff.

As they marched by Pace College Monday, many of the workmen hurled insults at students who were looking out windows.

At one point there was a slight scuffle between the blue collars and unidentified hecklers, but it was quickly broken up by police, whose ranks were swelled because of the Friday melee.

Higher Farmer Share of Food Dollar Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers continued receiving their largest share of the consumer food dollar in 15 years during 1970's first quarter, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials said 41 cents of each dollar consumers spent on farm-originated food went to producers in January-March. This was the same share as for the last three quarters of 1969 and the highest yearly rate since 1955, according to department records.

The share is based on a list of "market basket" items which economists have used over the years to show changes in costs of producing, transporting and marketing food products.

Officials said in a preliminary report that the retail cost of market basket foods during the first quarter was an annual rae of $1,225 or a 2.2 per cent gain from last October-November.

Of this, farmers received $505 while it cost $720 to market the products between the farm and retail shelves. This compared with the farm share of $488 in October-November and the middleman cost of $711 during the fourth quarter of 1969, the report said.

In 1964 the total market basket of food cost $1,080 with the farmer getting $414 or 38 cents of each food dollar, and the middleman $666, the report showed.

"Compared with the first quarter of 1969," the report said, "returns to farmers were up 11.5 per cent. Sharp increases for meat animals, eggs and fresh vegetables contributed significantly to the rise."

HUDDERSFIELD, England (AP) — The Rev. Stephen Hatcher, a 25-year-old Methodist minister, wants to close down and sell off the churches, church halls and Sunday schools in Britain and give the money raised to Christian Aid. An added advantage of his plan, he says, is that clergy of all denominations would then be free to get on with their real work instead of having to worry about organ funds and church repair accounts. He considers it "selfish, self-centered and a terrible waste of time and money" to maintain antiquated buildings that are used mainly by a handful of elderly people only once or twice a week.

CROCODILE FIGHT

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — An African and his wife fought a grim tug-of-war with a crocodile in the Musarangadhli River and emerged alive. They were wading across the river when the crocodile seized the wife, who had a baby strapped to her back. Her husband attacked the croc with his fists, pounding it on the head, so it released the woman and snapped its jaws shut on his right hand.

Hanging to the branch of an overhanging tree, the African fought desperately for 15 minutes to stop the croc dragging him into deeper water. Then he had an idea. "I told my wife to remove the cloth holding the baby to her back. I stuffed the cloth into the crocodile's mouth and forced it to release my hand. We then ran for safety," he related later. The African had to have several stitches in his hand and his wife was treated for a crushed wristbone.

ARMED FORCES

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 4 MAY 1970 – A record number of persons will graduate with an Associate of Arts Degree from the resident campus of Southern Baptist College, Friday, May 8.

Twenty- seven individuals will receive the degrees in the formal ceremony at 7 p.m. at the base Chapel.

Dean Joseph F. Chambers, Residence Center, said, "This is our largest class. It is our fourth annual graduation and we have increased from three to 18, to 25, to this year's total."

The principal speaker for Friday's graduation will be Brig. Gen. James E. Hill, 42d Air Division commander.

Alphabetically, those graduating are: TSgt. Anthony Alvarado, TSgt. Mark Campbell, MSgt. Ralph Collier, Sgt. Jerry Lee Hall, Sgt. Timothy Harrington, TSgt. John Henick, Miss Joan Hoyes, MSgt. Michael Keaveney, Sgt. Donnie Knott, SSgt. Robert Lalime, Sgt. Frederick Lastra, and SSgt. Warren Payne.

Others graduating are: SMSgt. Merlin Purvey (retired), SSgt. Richard Reed, SSgt. David Ricker, Sgt. Phillip Rickman, Sgt. Stephen Rausch, Tommy Saliba, Sgt. Richard Simons, TSgt. Niels Soerenson, Sgt. Larry Strange, Sgt. Randall Stone, Msgt. Fred Thompson, TSgt. Harry Tomich, Miss Mary E. Wallace, SSgt. Robert Weldon, Sgt. Darryll Wilcox.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, Ark. 4 MAY 1970 — TSgt. Joel D. Seabaugh, 97th Organizational Maintenance Squadron has been selected s P-R-I-D-E (Professional Results in Daily Effort) Man of the Quarter for the period ending March 31.

Recognizing a manning nd training problem had developed, Sergeant Seabaugh initiated management actions to alleviate the situation.

In his function as Flight Line Controller, Sergeant Seabaugh insured that new, untrained personnel were scheduled during the work day, in such a manner as to allow them to take part in the maximum number of different maintenance actions... accelerating their familiarization with jet aircraft maintenance.

Sergeant Seabaugh also initiated a program among the crew chiefs designed to minimize the number of in- flight write-ups and increase the cleanliness of the aircraft.

Three other individuals received certificates from the Senior P-R-I-D-E Council. They were: MSgt. Walter C. Podguski, NCOIC, Intelligence Division; SSgt. John E. Gillett, 97th Field Maintenance Squadron; and TSgt. James V. Daly, Jr., NCOIC, Administrative Communications Branch, Administration Division.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Staff Sergeant Bobby H. Gage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gage of Rt. 4, Green Forest, Ark., has graduated from the U.S. Air Force Noncommissioned Officer Leadership School at Bolling AFB, Washington, D.C.

The sergeant, a security police supervisor, was trained in military management and supervision. He is assigned at the Pentagon, Washington, D.C., in a unit of the Headquarters Command.

Sergeant Gage is a 1958 graduate of Memphis (Mo.) High School. His wife, Peggy, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rice of Portageville, Mo.

ALEXANDRIA, La. — U.S. Air Force Master Sergeant William M. Phillips Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Phillips Sr., 203 N. Frisco St., Sikeston, Mo., has been named Outstanding Noncommissioned Officer of the Quarter at England AFB, La.

Sergeant Phillips, a management analysis supervisor, was selected for his leadership, exemplary conduct and duty performance. He is assigned to the headquarters squadron section of the 4410th Combat Support Group, a unit of the Tactical Air Command which provides combat units for air support of U.S. ground forces.

The sergeant, a 1952 graduate of Sikeston High School, attended Draughons Business College, Paducah, Ky., the University of Maryland, the University of Hawaii and Louisiana State University.

His wife is the former Elizabeth J. Chism.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 4 MAY 1970 - The 97th Avionics Maintenance Squadron has been selected as Squadron of the Quarter for the January-March period.

Second Lt. William E. Barnes, Chief, Management Analysis Branch, said, "The accomplishment was made possible through a sustained effort in their retention program, discipline training and overall unit administration. Earning this position reflects credit upon the entire squadron, the Deputy Commander for Maintenance and the 97th Bomb Wing."

The 97th Airborne Missile Maintenance Squadron was the runner- up for the quarterly honor. The 851st Medical Group placed third.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., — Seven individuals received awards at a recent 340th Bomb Squadron commander's call.

Lt. Col. William J. Heath, squadron commander, made the presentations.

Individuals and medals awarded were: Capt. Gary L. Hicks, Air Medal with seventh cluster, and the Air Force Commendation Medal; Capt. Kenneth J. Bunch, Air Medal with fifth cluster, and the Air Force Commendation Medal; Capt. Donald J. Johnson, Air Medal with fifth cluster, and the Air Force Commendation Medal; Capt. Charles S. Young, Air Medal with second cluster; Capt. James S. Wildes, Air Medal with sixth cluster; MSgt. Walter L. Ferguson, Air Medal with third cluster; and Capt. Walter J. Delaney, Jr., Air Force Commendation Medal.

(30BB00026A) JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (FHTNC) May 1-- Marine Private First Class Virgil L. Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Horton of 306 N. Poplar, Dexter, Mo., is now serving with Marine Air Base Squadron 26 at Marine Corps Helicopter Air Station New River at Jacksonville, N.C.

U.S. AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. — Jesse L. Geary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Geary of Rt. 1, Dexter, Mo., has been promoted to senior master sergeant in the U.S. Air Force.

Sergeant Geary is a supply superintendent at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

The sergeant is a 1954 graduate of Gray Ridge High School. His wife, Nina, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rodgers of Rt. 1, Essex, Mo.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 4 MAY 1970 -- Arkansas born TSgt. Austin E. Wyatt, noncommissioned officer in charge, Management Analysis Branch, has spent 14 years at Blytheville... because the Air Force takes care of its own.

He said, "My wife, Jo Ann, has a severe rheumatic heart disease. She underwent heart surgery in January, 1963 for replacement of the mitral valve."

"Further surgery is required now. I've been able to stay with her because the Air Force has seen fit to allow my presence each time I have requested it."

Sergeant Wyatt came to Blytheville, April 1, 1956, the same day the 461st Bomb Wing (TAC) was activated here.

He said, "The 461st BW consisted of an Air Base Group, a Maintenance and Supply Group, and a Bomb Group with three squadrons. The Wing Commander was Col. Thomas K. Ford and we had forty- five B-57 aircraft."

How did the base look on April Fools' Day 1956?

"The base was still in the renovation stage at the time I reported for duty. The hospital was only a dispensary in one of the barracks. Michigan Avenue was a muddy road... where I remember getting stuck several times, and no Capehart housing existed."

Sergeant Wyatt said, "At first the officer's housing was the housing closest to the base proper. Then there was a large vacant area, before the enlisted housing began. Now, of course, that vacant area itself is filled with housing.

"Base facilities were lacking also. The commissary was located in a warehouse behind Medical Supply.. there was no bowling alley... and they were just building the golf course.

"One incident in particular I remember from those early days, was a one- wheel landing of a B-57. At that time, all our B-57's were painted black, except for the wing commander's which was painted silver. One day two captains took the commander's aircraft up, and the landing gear stuck. They landed anyway, with one wing high and spun off harmlessly in the grass. It was lucky no one was injured."

What about the surrounding communities?

Sergeant Wyatt answered, "There were no shopping centers in Blytheville, and there wasn't as much housing to be found them. If you wanted to go to Memphis, you had to use U.S. Rt. 61, because the Interstate wasn't built yet. It took about three hours to get there."

Sergeant Wyatt's listing of jobs at Blytheville reads like an Air Force Specialty Code Book.

He said, "My first job was in the Adjutant's Section (now called the Administrative Division. I then served as NCOIC, Classified Handling Section; NCOIC, Special Orders Section; NCOIC, Mail and Records Center; NCOIC, Base Reproduction; NCOIC, Records and Forms Management; and Assistant Wing Sergeant Mayor before becoming Sergeant Mayor in April 1958."

These positions were all in the present Base Headquarters Building. Later Sergeant Wyatt served as NCOIC, Administrative Discharge Section; NCOIC, ADministrative Branch; as NCOIC, Personal Affairs Branch in the present Personnel building. He also worked in the present DCM complex, as NCOIC, Administrative Section Chief of Supply.

He stated, "At that time wrist surgery dictated a new AFSC. I crosstrained into Management Analysis in October 1961, and relocated in the Wing Headquarters building. (At that time, the present Wing Commander's office, Sergeant Mayor's office, Command Section, and Information Division offices belonged to Management Analysis.)

"In June, 1967, Management Analysis moved to its present location in Bldg. 641. I have been NCOIC there since April, 1967."

Except for a three month tour at Headquarters, Second Air Force at Barksdale AFB, La., in 1959, and 42 days in Vietnam in March, 1969, Sergeant Wyatt has served continuously at Blytheville.

During his time with the Management Analysis Branch, he has co- authored one staff study which is included in the Management Analysis technical school training curriculum as a training aid, and two others which have been briefed at SAC Commander's Conferences.

Two of the past three years the branch has been judged the best Management Analysis Branch in 2nd AF.

Sergeant Wyatt concluded, "Some of the people on base like to kid me about being here so long. They say that I'm just part of the furniture, or that I own the base or something."

But to Sergeant Wyatt, his 14 years at Blytheville have not come about because of design, but because of a need... and because the Air Force takes care of its own.

In a single day, a bee may make several housand visits to flowers.

From Moon Rocks to Bustles Only Few Steps

"One Small Step For Man-- A Giant Leap for Mankind." The words spoken by Neil Armstrong as he became the first man to set foot on the moon, adequately describe two new exhibits in the Missouri State Msueum in the capitol in Jefferson City.

From the Victorian Age of prudery and bigotry, during the 1880s and 1890s, to 1970 when man flew to the moon, constitute years of giant steps for mankind. However, in the museum only a few steps form the distance between the moon rock exhibit and a new display which depicts the past. The exhibit, titled, Cultural Expansion - Post Civil War, is creating interest with both young and old.

The display features a beautiful young lady of that bygone era of bustles and bows dressed in all of the finery of the time. She is clad in a velvet dress, whalebone corset, tiny hat perched atop her brunette hair, a gold, hunting case brooch watch and a delicate folding fan, which was required for the well dressed lass of the era.

In the late Victorian period following the war between the states new cultural values were beginning to appear. Better communications along with improved transportation were brought forth creating desires for a more affluent society.

Clothing and furniture reflected new styling-- better homes were built and commerce began to expand throughout Missouri. It was an age of the giant steamboats which plied the state's great rivers. The young lady is depicted as viewing a river steamer plying the Missouri River, through the window of her home.

The exhibit will bring nostaglic memories to many who may recall, at least in part, the days of the old drop- leaf table, a necessary furnishing in every home of affluence and the ornate family clock that ticked away the hours on the mantle. The wall paper in the room, where the model sits, is eye-catching to say the least. It is bedecked with flowers and ornate design. Beside the young lady are two hat boxes. Here again patterns are imprinted to catch the eye. The furnishings of her room follow the flowery motiff of the period and the carpenter of today will stand in wonder at the craftsmanship of the baseboards and other woodwork of the room.

Yes, its a giant step from the days of the tin- type pictures, which are also displayed, to man's footprints on the moon, but the staff of the State Museum have successfully bridged the gap with the moon rock exhibit and the attraction featuring the gay 90's.

Gerald Massie, assistant director of the Division of Commerce, and also serving in the dual capacity of acting director of the Museum, states that it is strange that the thousands of school children who daily visit the Museum show comparable enthusiasm for the moon fragments and a display depicting an era when their great grandparents were young.

Massie said, "Building an exhibit is comparable to putting on a Broadway musical. It must meet the critic's approval. It is certainly a pleasant sound to her both the young and old voice their delight at these two exhibits which have such a span of years dividing their period of interest."

THE HERITAGE OF LENINISM

On April 22, communists throughout the world celebrated the 100th anniversary of the birth of V. I. Lenin, the first dictator of the Soviet Union and the founder of the communist totalitarian system that holds the Russian people in bondage. The tercentenary celebration of Lenin's birth will continue for a full year, and Americans can be sure that the celebration will be in the celebration will be in the form of political deeds as well as speeches and publication of histories.

It is important that the Amercian people understand Lenin and Leninism, for the heritage he left lives to endanger the United States and its institutions and free people everywhere.

Lenin was the son of a school official under the Czarist government, a member of the minor nobility. He turned to revolutionary action after his older brother was executed for joining in an assassination attempt against Czar Alexander III. For much of his adult life Lenin lived abroad, mostly in Switzerland. He managed to manipulate revolutionary elements in Russia, and by 1903 -- at the Marxist Congress -- he had defined his doctrine and his method.

It was Lenin who shaped Marxist doctrines to the Russian experience. He created the armed doctrine that is communism today. He made the Communist Party a semi-military organization with total discipline. He envisioned the idea of dictatorial rule until the coming of the final socialist utopia, as envisioned by communists. This rather mild appearing man, who led a quiet personal life, was the organizer of the most ruthless totalitarian system in history. He fastened on the Russian people a tyranny far more total then anything imagined by the Czars. Lenin also conceived the new Red imperialism which, over the last half century, has come to destroy ancient, independent nations and hold hundreds of millions of people in thraldom.

The heritage Lenin left is a heritage of hate -- hatred of constitutional government, the capitalist system, and the traditional freedoms we enjoy in the United States. His message of hate still blinds millions of people and has a perverse attraction as indicated by the emergence of the New Left in the U. S. in recent years.

The young revolutionaries who have blown up ROTC buildings on college campuses and planted bombs in corporate headquarters in New York City are heirs to the Leninist tradition -- the tradition of terror and destruction. Some of Lenin's followers belong to the orthodox Communist Party. Many more belong to a variety of New Left groups which are indisciplined from the regular communits standpoint but which are permeated by Leninist hatred of republican institutions.

The West still does not appreciate the seriousness of the Leninist threat. It does not grasp the depth of the deceit that Lenin taught to all communists. For example, recent debates in the U. S. Senate on the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks in Vienna revealed the prevailing ignorance of Leninism. A number of "liberal" senators expressed the view that the Russian delegation to the SALT talks would be reasonable and businesslike and would bargain in good faith. Good faith bargaining and reasonableness is impossible for a good Leninist, as the Russian delegates most certainly are.

The Russians see the Vienna talks as an opportunity to soften up the United States and to persuade the U. S. to abandon its weapon systems. No doubt, the Russians will be willing to sign an agreement, to affix their names to a scrap of paper. Lenin taught actions of that sort, all the while understanding secretly that no agreement would be respected unless it suited the needs of the communist regime.

Lenin made the Bolshevik revolutionary faction the dominant faction by tactics of deceitful negotiation. He was ready to make any part of inter-faction agreement because he utterly rejected any standard of truth or good faith. The methods Lenin developed for Russia's internal situation are the methods his followers have employed. The only real concession a Leninist will make is a concession of words, for tactical purposes.

Always the Leninist -- the communist -- goal isdestruction of the capitalist countries. Nikita Khrushchev said to the United States: "We will bury you." He meant it. And so do today's communists, both the party hierarchy in Moscow and the delegates to the SALT talks in Vienna.

If the American people don't understand the grim reality, if they don't grasp the brutal maessage that V. I. Lenin delivered in his lifetime, their chances of survival against a formidable adversary will not be good. Thus it is essential that the American people and their leaders comprehend the threatening message of hatred and evil that is Leninism.

BENTON — Sometimes you just can't stand it any longer -- you simply have to do a few paint jobs around the house. And try to paint one piece of furniture, and see if you can stop at that! You can't, of course.

It's fun to paint and you get such rewards from your efforts. The paints available today are so easy to apply, and so quick to dry, that they make painting more sport that work. But it doesn't pay to rush into any paint job.

First, wash whatever it is you're going to paint. You may notice the light film of grime on the surface of a chair or a chest. It's not just dust, but grime that may have become set over the months or years. This can make your paint job uneven and the results disappointing.

If you intend to do a really thorough-going job, sand the surface before applying new paint. But if you're not that particular, at least start with a clean surface. Go over the piece with soap or detergent suds, rinse it with a damp sponge or cloth, and let it dry thoroughly before you pick up a paint brush. There's no sense in putting new paint over a dirty surface.

And don't make the mistake of sticking the paint brush into a can of something or other after the job is finished -- and leaving the brush there till next season! A good brush deserves good care. When latex paints are used, brushes may be washed in warm suds and rinsed thoroughly. For other types, use a commercial solvent disigned for the purpose. Be sure to get all the paint out of the bristles you possibly can. But don't stop there. Wash the brush in warm suds. Rinse it thoroughly, and hang it up to dry.

Tie a piece of string onto the handle. Let the bristles dry naturally, at room temperature or outdoors. When the brush is dry, wrap it in foil, or put it into a plastic bag. You'll be glad you took this extra trouble. A good paint brush can last for years.
